OUR LONDON LETTER.

MR. GLADSTONE, by a judicious course of holiday-making out of town from Saturday to Monday, has improved wonderfully in health. This sultry July has made many members limp and spiritless: but Liberals who feel themselves under a deep debt of gratitude to that marvel of intellectual energy the Prime Minister, will be glad to learn that Mr. Gladstone, looking quite festive in light, summer garb, suggestive of Goodwood rather than the close and oppressive House of Commons, rises superior to the multifarious details of the Irish Land Bill, and still does the lion's share of the weary work of cleaving its way through Committee. Once fairly out of the House of Commons, the great measure of the Session will not, I fancy, be received with anything worse than a violent show of opposition in the Lords. The large Ministerial majorities of one hundred and upwards commanded by Mr. Gladstone are too strong not to exercise a wholesome restraint on the erratic, mad-bull rushes of the Marquis of Salisbury.

The great Volunteer Review in Windsor Park last Saturday was the most powerful demonstration England has made for many years; and the immensity of self-sacrifice which that vast assemblage of fifty thousand wage-earning riflemen meant will not have been thrown away upon the Continental nations which crush themselves industrially to the dust to maintain their armies of conscripts. As a spectacle, the Review by the Queen of her Citizen Army was most brilliant. Word-pictures galore have been limned of the smiling Sovereign in the carriage with the future Empress of Germany and the future Queen of England; of the noble horsemen near her Majesty, most martial of all, the Prince Imperial of Germany in his white cuirassier uniform; of the sailor-like swing of the Naval Artillery Volunteers, and the fine front of the crack corps of London and Lancashire; but I don't know whether the two-page drawing rapidly made for the current Number of this Journal does not present, after all, the most comprehensive idea of this magnificent Review of Volunteers.

The official plan of the Windsor Review, by-the-way, published in the last issue of this Paper was of great use, I am glad to hear, to many who had to be present in Windsor Park on Saturday.

Grandly successful as the Windsor Review was, the War Office—or is it the Woods Office that is now responsible for the administration of the Army?—might easily have made it more impressive still. How? Simply by suggesting that, in cases where it would be manifestly too inconvenient for the entire regiments to travel to Windsor, only the officers should have journeyed thither, and marched past the Queen as the representatives of their corps.

The King David Kalakaua, who is now the dusky lion of the season, was chosen Ruler of the Sandwich Islands in preference to Queen Emma, on Feb. 12, 1874. He is essentially a Pacific King; and can be trusted in any drawing-room.

As one who has on many occasions admired the judgment, forbearance, and general good-humour and consideration of the London Police, shown sometimes under the most trying circumstances, I can sincerely congratulate them upon having so firm and true a friend as Mr. C. E. Howard Vincent. The Director of Criminal Investigation has in several ways laboured zealously to promote the best interests of the Metropolitan Police. He was foremost in organising the Orphanage meeting recently at Strawberry Hill, where Sir William Harcourt delivered the richly-deserved panegyric of "the Force." The Police and Constabulary Forces generally—aye, and "the great unpaid," to boot—are now indebted to Mr. Vincent for the handy volume, to which he has given the title, "Police Code: Manual of the Criminal Law." Published by Cassell, Petter, and Galpin, this "Police Code" is a substantially useful memorial of patient labour and skill; and the study and mastery of its contents will undoubtedly do much to increase the intelligence and efficiency of our guardians in blue.

There are venturesome spirits yet daring enough to dip into the journalistic lottery. Excellent in its way though the Echo is, I have long thought there was room here for a Petit Journal such as is so enormously successful in France. Whether the new halfpenny Evening News, to be launched in London next Tuesday, will supply this want, I cannot say. The new venture is to be Liberal: that's one comfort. PHILIP.

News in a Nutshell.

THE ROYAL PROCESSION AT THE WINDSOR REVIEW.

A RAY of sunshine glinted on the spiked infantry helmets just as the Royal cavalcade appeared in sight last Saturday in Windsor Park. Gorgeous in all the glory of crimson and gold, waving plumes, and many decorations, came a brilliant staff, following the advanced guard of Household Cavalry. Then a hearty cheer rose as her Majesty's carriage, drawn by four greys and preceded by scarlet-clad outriders, passed slowly along the saluting base. The Queen wore a white dress, with puffed sleeves, and a cuirass of black satin. In the bonnet a few blossoms of white flowers were mingled with folds of black tulle and lace. In the carriage with her Majesty sat the Princess of Wales and the Crown Princess of Germany. The former wore a dress and bonnet of blue silk trimmed with crimson, in compliment to the Honourable Artillery Company, of which the Prince was in command. The Crown Princess was dressed in a costume of the same creamy white as the uniform worn by her soldier-husband—the full dress of the famous Garde-du-Corps. The Duchess of Connaught, whose costume was of grey enriched by a brocade of soft texture; Princess Christian and Princess Louise, both wearing drab relieved by cardinal, and Princess Beatrice, in lavender, drove in the next carriage. With Prince Leopold were the Duchess of Teck and Prince Waldemar. Then came the two young Princesses of Hesse, wearing costumes of pale blue. In the last carriage were Mr. Childers and the Permanent Secretary of the War Office. Beside the Crown Prince of Germany, whose stalwart form towered above the surrounding cavalcade, rode Prince Louis of Hesse, in the unpretending, soldierly uniform of a German General.

THE QUEEN ON THE WINDSOR REVIEW.

The Queen desired the Commander-in-Chief to express her entire satisfaction with the soldier-like appearance and bearing of all ranks at the Review in Windsor Park. In notifying this in "general orders," the Duke of Cambridge expresses himself as satisfied that the discipline and endurance of all ranks would do credit to troops employed on permanent service, and are worthy of the highest commendation. His Royal Highness also thanks the railway companies for their hearty co-operation and untiring exertions.

CARRIAGE MISHAP: THE YOUNG PRINCESSES IN DANGER.

Princesses Louise, Victoria, and Maud of Wales were on Monday returning from their customary afternoon drive in Hyde Park when the two horses in their carriage bolted down Constitution-hill and through St. James's Park. When within about fifty yards of Marlborough House the equipage came into collision with a lamp-post, the animals were brought up, and the Princesses were rescued from their perilous situation.

THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.

On Saturday evening the Reserve Squadron, after having been visited by the Emperor and Empress of Russia and a large suite, sailed from Cronstadt for Kiel.

The Duke of Edinburgh has accepted the invitation of Mr. John Burns, the president of the Cumberland training-ship stationed on the Clyde, to distribute the prizes to the boys next month. H.R.H. will also open the new docks at Leith.

PRESIDENT GARFIELD.

President Garfield's condition continues favourable. Saturday night was the most comfortable he had had since the attempt on his life. The fund for Mrs. Garfield has reached 117,686 dols.

THE PRIME MINISTER.

after the breaking up of the Cabinet Council on Saturday afternoon, left town, accompanied by Mrs. and Miss Helen Gladstone, on a visit to the Right Hon. M. E. Grant Duff at York House, Twickenham, whence they returned to Downing-street on Monday morning.

THE IRISH LAND BILL.

Mr. Gladstone in earnest language defended Mr. Forster on Monday from the savage attacks made upon him by the extreme Parnellites, and said the Cabinet as a whole was responsible for the present administration of Ireland. The Premier was followed by Mr. Healy, who applied to Mr. Forster such language as to call forth a warm protest from Sir Stafford Northcote. The Land Bill moves. On Monday the Committee were, counting by clauses, half way through the Land Bill. Even this measure of advance was rather nominal than actual, seeing that Clauses 12 and 15 had been postponed. The second half of the Bill does not present nearly so many difficulties as the first. After Clauses 25 and 26 there remain only the clauses dealing with the appointment and proceedings of the Land Commission which are likely to give rise to prolonged debate.

THE LATE LORD HATHERLEY.

In the House of Lords last Monday the Lord Chancellor paid a warm tribute to the virtues of the late Lord Hatherley; and Earl Cairns and Earl Granville also testified to the esteem in which the deceased ex-Chancellor was held.

SCENE IN THE DUBLIN CORN EXCHANGE.

On Tuesday an eccentric barrister, named Barnes, visited the Dublin Corn Exchange, and after delivering a political speech he was pelted with flour and corn. On the secretary and others interfering they also were similarly treated.

THE TWELFTH OF JULY.

The Orange anniversary celebrations in Ulster on Tuesday were of more than ordinary significance. Ten thousand Orangemen marched through Belfast to attend a meeting at Lambeg. A mission school, connected with Duncarrin Presbyterian Church, Belfast, was wrecked by a Roman Catholic mob, which assembled with bludgeons for the purpose of attacking houses of Protestants in the district. This led to hostilities, and, accordingly, the school-house was smashed by Roman Catholics. There was also stone-throwing in Donegal-street.

LORD SALISBURY

presided on Monday at a meeting convened at Willis's Rooms to hear from delegates from the loyal inhabitants of the Transvaal their views of the situation in South Africa. The noble Marquis expressed the deepest sympathy with those men who, trusting in British promises after the annexation of the Transvaal, had invested their money in that country, and taken up arms in defence of British authority, and who now found themselves abandoned by England in their need, exposed to the hatred of their fellow-citizens, and the loss of all their property. The delegates described the state of feeling in the Transvaal and the losses that had been incurred by the country being handed over to the Boers. They urged that there would be no peace for South Africa unless the British supremacy were upheld. Earl Cadogan, Earl Percy, M.P., and Lord G. Hamilton, M.P., were among the speakers. But the British Residents, as a matter of fact, to have complete charge of the foreign relations of the country; and British influence in native questions is to be provided for. What is restored to the Boers is the self-government of which they were deprived four years ago.

HENRI ROCHEFORT

addressed a gathering in Belleville on Sunday, his Revolutionary utterances being, it is said, loudly applauded. He accused Senators and Deputies of using their positions to enrich themselves, and declared that M. Gambetta's object in proposing the Scrutin de Liste was to establish himself as Dictator.

FRANCE AND TUNIS.

A telegram to the Petit Marseillais on Sunday said that the bombardment of Sfax continued. The insurgents answered vigorously, but their shots did not reach the French vessels. The works of the insurgents were destroyed in the daytime by the French, but reconstructed at night. The Tunisian soldiers brought by the French ships to tranquillise the insurgents proved a danger, and fraternised with them.

On Sunday the Mediterranean squadron, consisting of ten large vessels, left Toulon for Sfax and Tunis. A despatch from Oran says fears are entertained that Bou Amena will try to make an incursion into some points south of Oran not well guarded with troops.

THE ALGERIAN INSURRECTION.

The Télégraphe says that a corps of 20,000 men is rapidly being formed to reinforce the Algerian army under its new Commander-General Saussier. The République Française has two telegrams from Tunis dated July 10, one stating that the bombardment of Sfax continues, and that the town is almost destroyed.

A despatch from Algiers announces that the insurgent chief Bou Amena, with 1000 Arabs, made two unsuccessful attacks, on the 9th inst., upon the town of Kreider, which was defended by three companies of French Rifles. The insurgents fled towards the south-east, with the loss of 250 men.

Sir J. H. Drummond Hay, British Minister to Morocco, arrived at Gibraltar, July 10, from England, and proceeded immediately to Tangiers on board her Majesty's gun-boat Empress.

DEFEAT OF TURKISH TROOPS NEAR MECCA.

Two battalions of Turkish troops have been routed in an engagement with an insurgent force near Mecca. Two hundred and fifty Turkish soldiers are stated to have been killed.

THE GREEKS AT ARTA.

A Special Correspondent at Arta telegraphs further particulars respecting the occupation by the Greeks. Notwithstanding an attempt to prevent all demonstrations, the city was gaily decorated and illuminated, and crowds filled the streets late into the night, perfect order prevailing.

DEATH OF THE GOVERNOR OF THE BAHAMAS.

Mr. J. T. F. Callaghan, Governor of the Bahamas, bound for England on sick leave, died soon after landing at New York on Saturday last.

MR. BRADLAUGH.

Last Sunday evening, at a meeting held at the Hall of Science, Mr. Bradlaugh announced that he intended to hold a great meeting of his supporters in Trafalgar-square on Aug. 2, and on the following day he should present himself at the House of Commons for the purpose of taking the oath as a duly-elected representative of the people.

ROYAL AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The exhibition of the Royal Agricultural Society of England opened at Derby on Tuesday morning. Amongst the novelties shown is Darby's steam digger, 8-horse power, guaranteed to dig an acre per hour. Another new implement is a drain-maker. Improved implements an old forms of machinery are very numerous throughout the yard. The stock department did not open until Wednesday. The entry is a good one, and a most successful gathering is expected. The Prince of Wales, and possibly the Crown Prince of Germany, visit the show on Friday.

MR. ALEXANDER ASHER, who unsuccessfully contested Glasgow and Aberdeen Universities at the general election, has been selected as the Liberal candidate for the Elgin Burghs. Saturday's test ballot gave Mr. Asher 813 votes, as against 230 for Mr. A. C. Sellar and 169 for Mr. Ainslie.

GROUSE PROSPECTS

in the West Highlands are favourable. Coveys are numerous and healthy.

DISASTER IN A CHURCH.

The roof of a church at San Mateo, Mexico, fell in during service on the morning of the 5th inst., killing over thirty of the worshippers present, the greater number being women. The church was being partially rebuilt, and while a party of men were working on the roof one fell through, and the sudden rush of all the others at the same moment in their endeavours to get off caused the remainder of the roof to collapse. Twenty of the workmen were killed, and several were fatally injured.

FIRES AND LOSS OF LIFE.

Shortly before five o'clock last Monday morning a fire of a serious nature occurred at No. 8, Goodge-street, Tottenham-court-road, the lives of several families being placed in the utmost peril. Between twelve and one o'clock the same morning a fire occurred at No. 28, Mary Ann-street, Christian-street, St. George's East, in the back room on the ground floor, occupied by Mr. L. Miller. Much damage was occasioned from various causes, and Bertha Miller, aged one year and four months, was burned to death.

DEATHS FROM DROWNING.

Mr. Lot Foster, of Nottingham, was drowned while bathing on Saturday at Bispham, near Blackpool. His wife and children were on the beach when the accident occurred. Two young men were drowned on Sunday in the river Lune, about four miles south of Lancaster, through the capsizing of a boat in which they were sailing.

"THE OLD, OLD STORY."

A little love, a little glove,
A little rosebud for a token;
A little sigh for days gone by,
A little girl heart broken.

Another man woos Sarah Ann,
With bank-book well extended;
A social crown, a house in town,
And Sarah's heart is mended.

PRINTERS' EXHIBITION.—The second annual exhibition and market of the printing and paper-making, stationery, and kindred trades was opened at the Agricultural Hall on Thursday. The exhibitors number close upon 200, and their exhibits are thoroughly representative of every division of the printing, paper-making, and stationery industries.

MOSQUITOES IN LONDON.—Within the past few days the metropolis has been visited by a swarm of mosquitoes, the insects first making their appearance in the neighbourhood of Rotherhithe on board some vessels laden with hides from South America.

THE COMPETITION FOR THE PAREPA-ROSA GOLD MEDAL took place at the Royal Academy of Music on Monday. The examiners were Messrs. Ardit, Maas, and Li Calsi (chairman). There were four candidates, and the medal was awarded to Benjamin Davies.

STAGE AND ORCHESTRA GOSSIP.

ROYALTY gallantly support the French Comic Opera at the Gaiety; but there has been a plentiful array of empty benches in the plebeian parts of the house. The Prince and Princess of Wales and the Crown Prince and Princess of Prussia witnessed the performance of "Belle Lurette" at the Gaiety Theatre last Monday evening. Mlle. Granier is nice; but she is not a Judie.

MR. HENRY IRVING has been elected President of the London Shakspeare and Burns Society.

MR. IRVING has consented to preside at the dinner of the Theatrical Fund on July 29.

ADELINA PATTI sings for the last time this season at Covent Garden on July 23.

MR. DION BOUCICAULT, whilst playing Myles na Coppaleen in the "Colleen Bawn" at the Crystal Palace last Monday afternoon, met with an accident to one of his feet in making the jump to save Eily O'Connor from drowning. Mr. Boucicault was unable to proceed with his part, but in the evening was stated to be better, we are glad to hear. Mr. Boucicault on the previous Saturday gave his touching performance of Kerry at the Adelphi.

"IL RINNEGATO," composed by Baron Bódog-Orczy, was produced at Her Majesty's Theatre last Saturday evening, when the performance was conducted by the Hungarian nobleman himself. The Wagneresque opera has been splendidly mounted as to scenery and costumes, and the Hungarian ballet action is excellently arranged, and includes the very skilful solo dancing of Madame Cavalazzi and a young lady (en Cavalier).

"LOHENGGRIN," owing to the indisposition of Madame Nilsson, could not be given at the Haymarket Opera House on Monday; and visitors to Her Majesty's were informed that the new opera, "Il Rinnegato," was to be represented in the place of Herr Wagner's work. The proposed substitution seemed to be the reverse of gratifying to the audience.

HAVERLY'S REAL NEGRO HEAD TROUPE OF MINSTRELS "open" at Her Majesty's on July 30.

LIVERPOOL has this week rushed to see Sarah Bernhardt in the French plays at the Alexandra; but Mr. Charles Kelly has bravely upheld the credit of English Comedy in "New Men and Old Acres"—just the piece for Liverpool—at the Prince of Wales's.

THE CARL ROSA COMPANY will commence their next provincial tour with English Opera at Liverpool at the beginning of August; and seats are already being booked at the theatre to be honoured with a visit by this famous Opera Company.

"THE GREEN BUSHES" was revived on Saturday last at Sadler's Wells Theatre, with Miss Rose Leclercq in the character of Miami, and Mr. E. H. Brooke in that of Connor O'Kennedy. New scenery by Mr. W. B. Spong.

THE PERFORMANCES OF THE MEININGEN COURT COMPANY at Drury Lane Theatre will be extended to the 23rd inst., making a season of eight weeks instead of six weeks, as originally announced.

A NEW DRAMA, by Messrs. Paul Merritt and Augustus Harris, is announced for production at Drury Lane after the departure of the Meiningen company on July 30.

MR. HENDERSON announces that he has withdrawn his company from the Globe Theatre, which house closed rather suddenly last Saturday evening.

LEFROY, type of many a theatrical lounge, had some time ago an interview with Miss Kate Vaughan and Mr. Royce on the strength of an imaginary commission to engage them for Australia. But they were too old stagers to bite.

THE ATTRACTIONS AT THE ALEXANDRA PALACE on Saturday included a rose show, a mule show, and the goat show of the British Goat Society, which was followed by a kid dinner. At the dinner, over which Mr. Freeman, of The Limes, Wandsworth, presided, the dishes were all of kid, the principal soup, "Billygoatawney," being excellent, and the so-called roast lamb (really roast sucking kid) being undistinguishable from the ordinary joint.

THE OPEN-AIR CONCERTS given by the Alexandra Palace management in the Grove and on the banks of the triple lakes continue to be the most delightful form of recreation obtainable by Londoners this broiling July.

THE CRYSTAL PALACE gathering of the Good Templars on Tuesday was an enormous one; and the brightness of the hosts of young people testified strongly to the benefits of the Temperance movement, which is effecting a quiet revolution in Great Britain.

THE CONCERT of the London School Board children will be the great attraction this (Saturday) afternoon and evening at the Crystal Palace, where, by-the-way, Mr. G. H. Sims's rattling "Member for Slocum" will be played by Kate Lawler's Royalty Company on Monday and Tuesday next.

AT EDINBURGH, when Mr. J. B. Howard is in doubt, "Play 'Rob Roy!'" is his motto. Hence "Rob Roy" is just now delighting pit and gallery at the Royal.

MANCHESTER has had to put up, theatrically, this week with such played-out fare as "Fritz in Ireland" at the Royal, "The Corsican Brothers" at the Queen's, and "Where's the Cat?" at the Prince's.

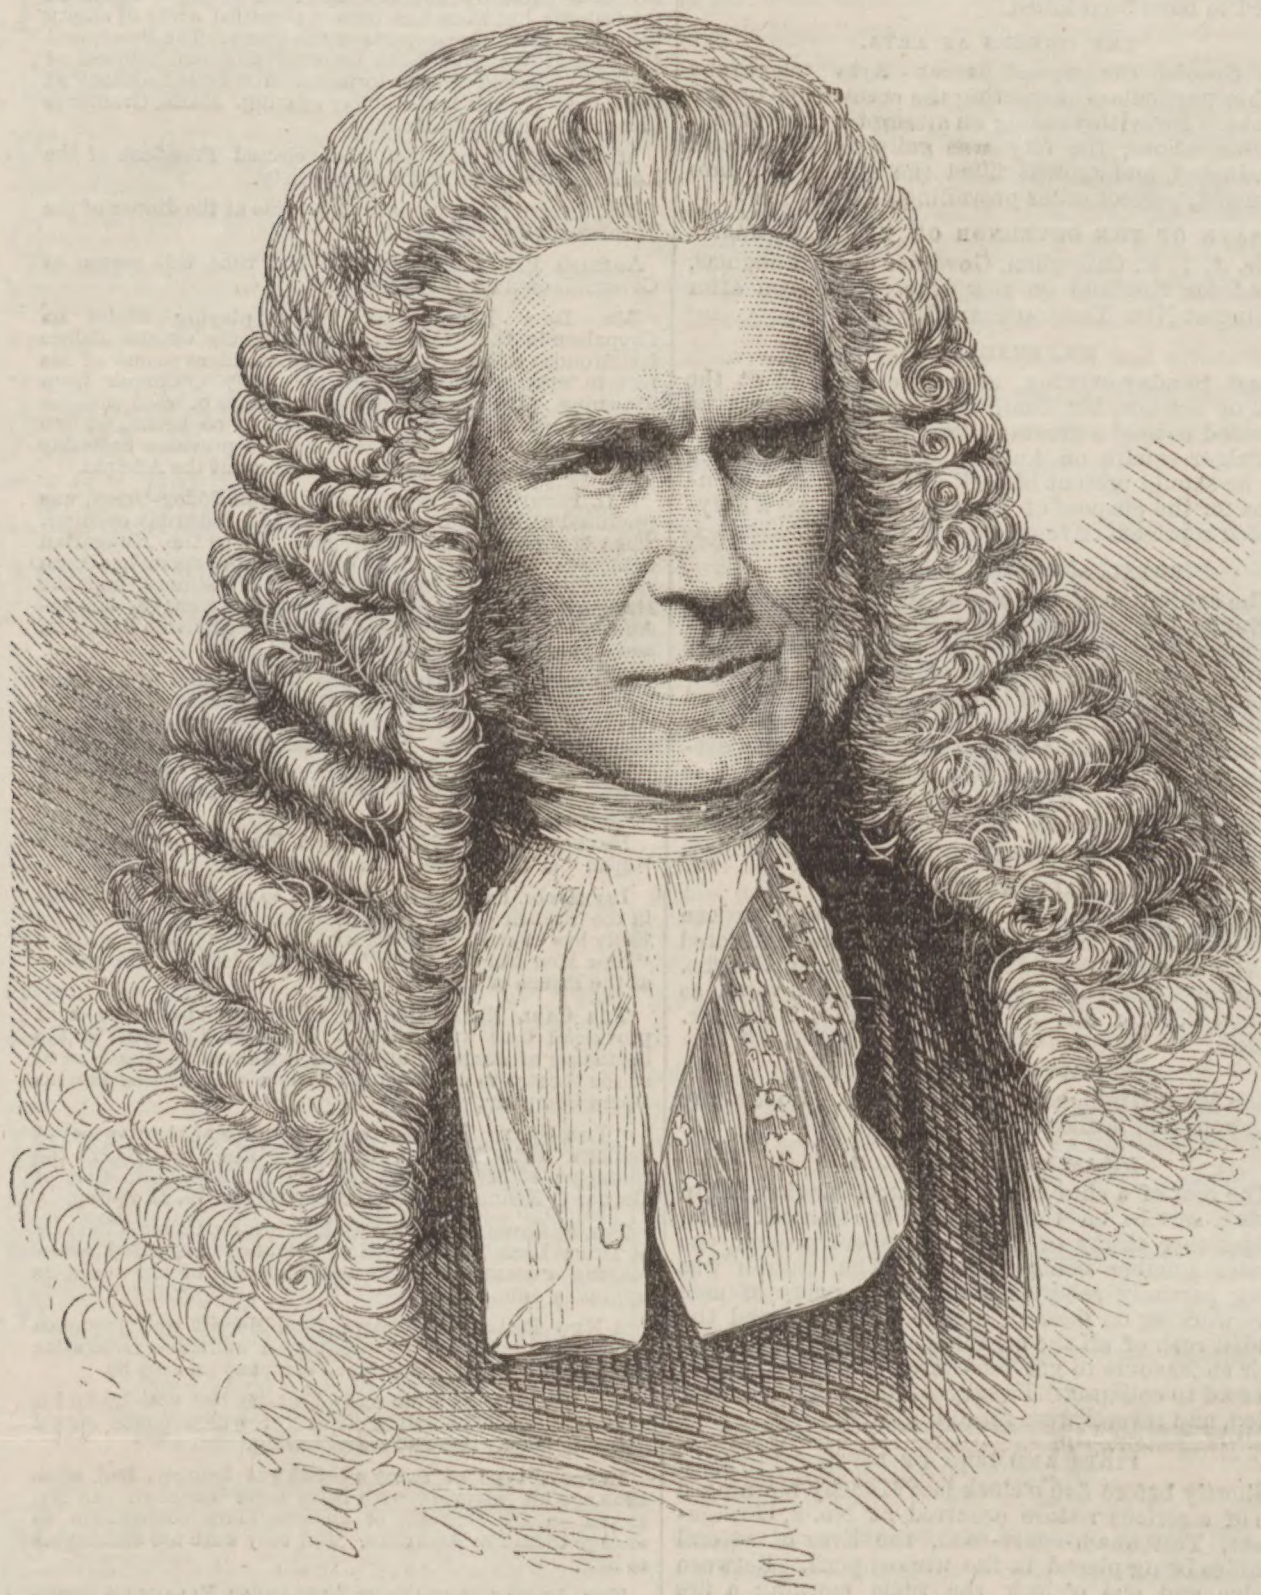

"PEGGY," Mr. Joseph Mackay's pocket drama, is contemplating a tour in Ireland, the author's native land.

THE BEATRICE COMPANY (Mr. Harvey's) will shortly appear for a fortnight at the Olympic Theatre, producing there a domestic drama from the French, new to London playgoers, entitled "The Workman"—rather a sickly sentimental play, to judge from the cards exhibited.

"KEATING'S POWDER" kills Bugs, Moths, Fleas, Beetles, and all insects (perfectly unrivalled); harmless to everything but insects. Tins, 6d. and 1s.—[ADVT.]

DR. BERNAYS ON COCOA.—"What are we to say to Cocoa containing only twelve to twenty per cent of Cocoa? A thin drink of genuine Cocoa would be both wholesomer and cheaper than when thickened." CADBURY'S ESSENCE is genuine and cheaper in use.—[ADVT.]

BEAUTIFUL TEETH.—The Hovenden Tooth-Paste, compounded from the most approved dental simples of the Pharmacopoeia. Rose flavour. The cheapest, most efficacious, and the most agreeable dentifrice extant. Price 1s., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale of R. Hovenden and Sons, London. Samples post-free 15 pennystamps.—[ADVT.]

THE LATE LORD HATHERLEY, EX-LORD CHANCELLOR.

Our Illustrations.

THE LATE LORD HATHERLEY.

WE have the honour to add to the Portrait Gallery of this Journal a lifelike likeness of one of England's great Judges, faithfully drawn by Mr. Thomas Scott from the photograph of Lord Hatherley taken by Mr. Charles Watkins, now of Torriano-avenue, Camden-road. Full of years, revered by all who knew him, he passed to his rest at the ripe age of eighty, on Sunday morning last, at his town-house in Great George-street, Westminster.

Lord Hatherley was the son of Sir Matthew Wood, the famous Alderman Wood, who persistently befriended Queen Caroline and braved the wrath of George IV. The popular Alderman's house in South Audley-street was the Court of the injured Queen, and was accordingly frequented by many foreign persons of distinction. In that school Lord Hatherley acquired the brilliant linguistic attainments which were confirmed by a subsequent residence at Geneva. Alderman Wood himself was twice Lord Mayor, was Liberal member for the City for twenty-eight years, and received a baronetcy from Queen Victoria in the first days of her reign. It was owing to his recommendation to the Duke of Kent, for whom he acted as trustee, that the Duke returned to England from Brussels in order that his child might be born in Great Britain.

Baron Hatherley, was the second son of Alderman Wood, by his marriage with Maria, daughter of Dr. John Page, of Woodbridge, in Suffolk, surgeon. He was born on Nov. 29, 1801. There is extant the best testimony that shortly after young Wood left Winchester the Duke of Kent directed that his own stepson, the Prince of Leiningen, half-brother of the Queen, should see as much as possible of William Page Wood, whose conduct, the Duke wrote, was an example to all. At Cambridge he suffered from ill-health, but came out twenty-fourth Wrangler in 1824, in the same tripos in which Dr. Guest was eleventh.

Lord Hatherley's first introduction to the practice of the law had been from a seat on the bench, where, as a boy, he sometimes sat beside his father when the latter helped to constitute the Court at the Old Bailey. He was admitted a student at Lincoln's Inn on March 1, 1824, immediately after his Cambridge degree, and was called by the same learned society in 1827.

LORD HATHERLEY AS LAW OFFICER AND JUDGE.

In 1830 he was earning £800 a year, and felt justified in marrying. His wife was Charlotte, the only daughter of Major Edward Moor, F.R.S., of Great Bealings, near Woodbury; author of the "Hindoo Pantheon." Lord Hatherley had been acquainted with Miss Moor from her earliest years, and their union was one of the most uninterrupted felicity.

Having been Vice-Chancellor of the County Palatine since May, 1849, he became Solicitor-General to Lord John Russell's Government on March 28, 1851, and was, according to the usual practice, knighted. Lord Chancellor Truro offered him the post of Vice-Chancellor in this year, but the Prime Minister requested his Solicitor-General to continue to act as law officer. He retired with his political chief in 1852, and went back to private practice. In the meanwhile, he had served on the Commission for reforming the procedure in Chancery, and had been made an honorary D.C.L. of Oxford. On Jan. 10, 1853, his party was again in office, Lord Aberdeen being Premier; and Sir William Page Wood took his seat as a Vice-Chancellor on Sir George Turner's joining the Lords Justices of Appeal. No Judge of first instance has given more confidence to suitors than Lord Hatherley.

He became Lord Justice of Appeal on March 5, 1868; and it was a mark of the respect in which he was held that on this occasion Lord Justice Selwyn, whose appointment was of earlier date, gracefully gave up to him the seniority in deference to his long services and experience. He was, however, to take precedence in the Court of Appeal in Chancery by a still higher title. Before the end of the year Mr. Gladstone was Prime Minister, and Sir W. Page Wood became his Lord Chancellor, being raised to the Peerage by the title of Baron Hatherley, of Down Hatherley. He held this high office for four years, but retired in 1872, owing to increasing failure of eyesight, and was succeeded by Lord Selborne. After his retirement, Lord Hatherley underwent a successful operation, performed by Mr. Critchett, for cataract, and recovered his vision.

LORD HATHERLEY AND THE QUEEN.

His wife's death in the winter of 1878 was a blow to him from which his friends hardly expected him to recover. It may be related as an instance of their attachment that, some years ago, Lord Hatherley, having to attend the Queen as Lord Chancellor, was bidden to stay as her Majesty's guest after the business for which he had come was finished. He betrayed some hesitation at this command, and, being pressed to explain, told her Majesty that it was the first occasion in his married life on which he had passed twenty-four hours away from Lady Hatherley. The Queen allowed him to depart, and graciously commanded that the next time the Lord Chancellor visited her he should be accompanied by Lady Hatherley. Another example of the friendly interest which Lord Hatherley's manly and simple rectitude of nature inspired in members of the Royal House was the gift to him by Princess Louise of a spray of white heather, broken by her from the bush at which the Princess and the Marquis of Lorne plighted their troth. It was carefully preserved by him to the last in his drawing-room at Great George-street.

REVIEW OF OUR VOLUNTEER ARMY BY THE QUEEN AT WINDSOR.

The Drawing by our Special Artist on the centre pages will afford our readers a fair idea of the vastness of the Volunteer gathering, which her Majesty the Queen reviewed on Saturday afternoon last in Windsor Park. Other great Volunteer reviews we have had. The Queen in 1860, two years after the Volunteer movement began, reviewed 20,890 Volunteers in Hyde Park, and some years later, when the force had made very considerable progress in numbers and organisation, as many as 28,000 or 30,000 assembled for inspection at Windsor and Portsmouth. The review of last Saturday throws these events completely in the shade. Not less than 55,000 men assembled under arms in Windsor Park, and that under conditions which gave their presence a very distinct and appreciable military value, and which cannot but invest the Volunteer movement, in the eyes of foreign nations and even of our own military authorities, with an importance it never before possessed.

CELERITY OF THE RAILWAY SERVICE.

The plan of the War Office was a sufficiently ambitious one. It was to call between 50,000 and 60,000 Volunteers to arms in all parts of the country, not excepting such remote counties as Northumberland and Pembroke, and to throw them into Windsor within a period of less than twenty-four hours—in other words, to effect such a mobilisation of the Volunteer force as a sudden invasion of our shores by a foreign enemy would demand. According to the official programme, not a battalion was to stir before Friday evening, with the exception of the 1st Pembrokehire, which for considerations of traffic, no doubt, was timed to leave Carmarthen Junction shortly after noon on the Friday, and to arrive at Slough the same night. The Northumberland men were not timed to take train at Newcastle till 6.40 on Friday evening. All the Midland and West of England corps were timed to begin their journey at midnight, or later, and those from London, the home counties, and the south and eastern counties were, without exception, to be transported to Windsor on the day of the review. A magnificent programme truly, well calculated to satisfy the most ardent Volunteer! For carrying it out to the letter there is no small credit due to the railway companies, and especially to the Great Western and the London and South-Western companies, upon whom the great burden of conveying the troops to Windsor naturally fell.

THE MUSTERING.

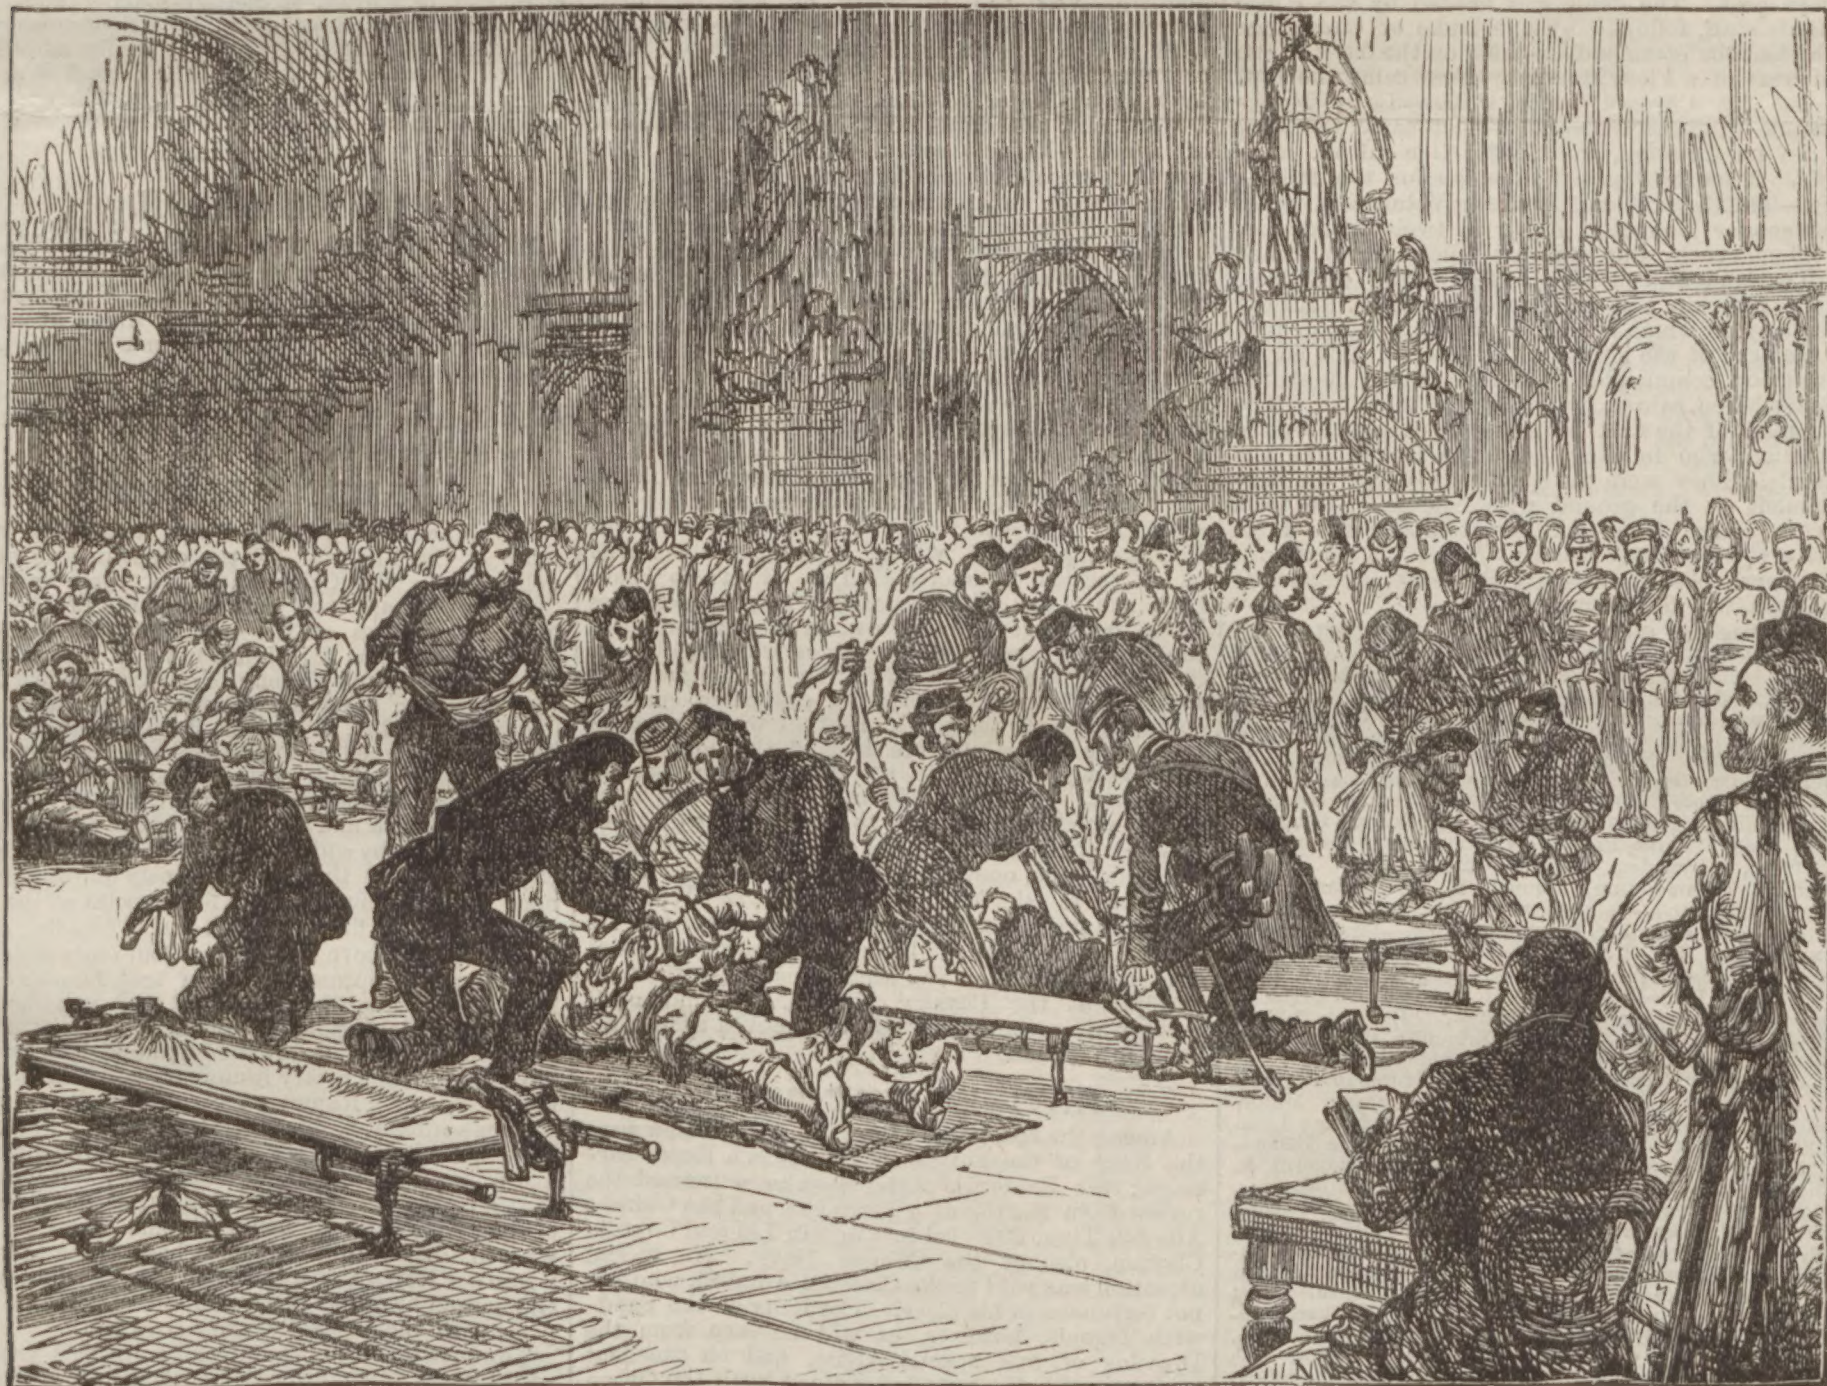

The arrangements in connection with the review depended for the most part on Prince Christian, the ranger of the park, who had contrived to appease the wrath of our legislators by providing for their accommodation an excellent coign of vantage. Those arrangements included the construction of some pontoon bridges, one of considerable length, across the Thames at Datchet, and some of a smaller description over Bourne ditch. The first detachments to arrive on the ground came from Slough shortly before seven a.m., and consisted of the 5th Lancashire Rifles, under Colonel Chisney, C.B., and the 1st Lancashire, 20th Lancashire (1050 strong), 1st Staffordshire and 4th Staffordshire Rifles; from Egham, about six a.m., the 6th Lancashire, 2nd Derby, and 5th Cheshire Rifles. From Windsor the Hon. Artillery Company and the 4th and 6th Middlesex Rifles arrived by ten o'clock, these being followed an hour later, from Datchet, by the 1st Kent Artillery, and the 3rd and 4th Essex Rifles. Contingents from Ascot also reached the ground a few minutes past nine o'clock. Other detachments had arrived and encamped on the ground the previous evening. The men, most of whom had travelled all night, looked in admirable condition, and were cordially received by the inhabitants. The weather was somewhat dull, but as the morning wore on it was felt that "Queen's weather," after all, was likely to favour the military pageant.

READY FOR REVIEW.

The space reserved for the review of the troops lay between the Long Walk, starting at the "Double Gates," and extending to about a mile; the saluting point being situated immediately half-way down Queen Anne's ride, at the opposite side. Along this avenue a number of booths were erected, which were well patronised during the day. Behind the saluting point an inclosure was reserved for members of both Houses of Parliament, who, accompanied by ladies, were present in only small numbers. Close to this space was a line of vehicles which were extensively occupied by ladies, many of whom wore brilliant costumes. As three o'clock drew nigh the first intimation of the approaching event was the firing of a single gun by the field-battery of the Hon. Artillery Company, which was the signal for the assembling at the rendezvous of the various corps. A quarter of an hour later a similar signal caused the battalions to fall in and march to their allotted positions on the review ground. This movement was executed in a highly creditable manner, and was also satisfactory as regards the time occupied. The men having formed into two lines—the first consisting of 30,000 men, and the second of about 20,000—an hour and a half was spent before the salute of twenty-one guns, announcing the departure from the castle of the Royal cortège, was heard.

The beautiful park, with its splendid trees, the columns of piled arms, the men dotted about in various-coloured uniforms, the refreshment tents here and there, the provision carts standing and moving, all combined to present the appearance of a huge military picnic.

THE QUEEN'S INSPECTION.

The Royal cortège passed between the armed avenue formed by the 2nd Army Corps, under Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, and was received with "a present," the bands playing "God Save the Queen." Nothing could be more striking than the steadiness of the men, not a move, not even a turn of the head taking place. At five p.m. precisely, the Royal party, in five carriages, came on to the review-ground, passing by the right flank of the 1st Army Corps—commanded by Sir Daniel Lysons—and along the front till the saluting point was reached, when a general salute was given.

The Queen, who looked extremely well and seemed much gratified with the splendid sight presented to her, was in the leading carriage, accompanied by the Princess of Wales and the Crown Princess of Germany. In three other carriages were other members of the Royal family, including the Duchess of Connaught, Princess Beatrice, the Duchess of Teck, Prince Leopold, and the two young Princesses of Hesse—who were much admired. A fifth carriage, containing Mr. Childers and Lord Thurlow, brought up the rear. The escort was furnished by a detachment of the Blues, who looked as superb as usual. Her Majesty was enthusiastically cheered, as were also the other members of the Royal family. Among the brilliant body of horsemen who formed part of the cortège were the Crown Prince of Germany, wearing the white uniform of the Cuirassiers of the Guard, and the Grand Duke of Hesse, in a blue uniform, both magnificent-looking men, well mounted, and sitting their horses admirably. The Royal salute having been given, the Queen rode down the front of both lines, and then returned to the saluting point.

THE MARCH-PAST

began at 5.30 and lasted till 7.10, during which time there was a ceaseless flow of troops past the Royal standard, in rear of which was a guard of honour of the Grenadier Guards. That in one hour and forty minutes over 50,000 men should have passed her Majesty is a fact which reflects credit alike on Generals, staff, and troops. The combined bands of the brigade of Guards and the combined bands of the Royal Artillery and Royal Engineers played the troops past. The defile was headed by the Horse Guards staff, followed by the Duke of Cambridge (who had the command-in-chief on the day), in the full dress of a Field Marshal. Next came the staff of the 1st Corps-d'Armée, followed by Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar. Then came the staff of the 1st Division, and Major-General W. Radcliffe. After him passed in succession the following:—The Royal Naval Artillery Volunteers, under Commander Domville, R.N., in twelve companies of 50 men each; fine stalwart fellows these, armed with carbines and cutlasses. The Prince of Wales, in the bearskin and uniform of the Hon. Artillery Company, of which he is honorary Colonel, rode past at the head of the light cavalry troop of this corps. This troop, commanded by Lord Headley, numbered twenty-seven sabres, and was well mounted. The four guns of the field battery were followed by the battalion, who in their bearskins looked like the Guards. They were noticeable as being the only regiment on the ground with colours. The total muster of the Hon. Artillery Company was 1135, with sixty-four horses, and four guns. The order of the march past of the First Corps, after these two divisions, was as follows:—

First Brigade: Commanding, Colonel J. Miller, 31st Brigade Dépôt—total, 1856. Second Brigade: Commanding, Colonel W. H. Hawley, 33rd Brigade Dépôt—total, 1448. Third Brigade: Commanding, Colonel J. Rose, 44th Brigade Dépôt—total, 1181. Fourth Brigade: Commanding, Colonel, G. E. Baynes, 42nd Brigade Dépôt—total, 2554. Second Division.—Major-General G. W. A. Higginson, C.B., Commanding.—First Brigade: Commanding, Colonel G. H. Moncrieff, Scots Guards—total, 2490. Second Brigade: Commanding, Colonel G. R. Fitzroy, Coldstream Guards—total, 2583. Third Brigade: Commanding, Colonel E. H. Clive, Grenadier Guards—total, 1969. Fourth Brigade: Commanding, Colonel R. A. Logan, C.B., 49th Brigade Dépôt—total 2369.—Third Division.—Major-General E. Newdigate, C.B., commanding.—First Brigade: Commanding, Hon. C. J. Addington, 43rd Brigade Dépôt—total, 2009. Second Brigade: Commanding, Colonel Hales Wilkie, 46th Brigade Dépôt—total, 1266. Third Brigade: Commanding, Colonel F. J. Jordyn, C.B., 41st Brigade Dépôt—total, 1645. Fourth Brigade: Commanding, Colonel G. T. Gough, 40th Brigade Dépôt—total, 2251.

Second Army Corps.—Commanding, Lieutenant-General Sir D. Lysons. First Division: Commanding, Major-General J. B. Spurgin, C.B., C.S.I. First Brigade: Commanding, Colonel J. S. Thompson, 26th Brigade Dépôt—total, 2347. Second Brigade: Commanding, Colonel R. R. Gillespie—total, 2455. Third Brigade: Commanding, Colonel Manningham Buller, 20th Brigade Dépôt—total 2409. Fourth Brigade: Commanding, Colonel J. H. Dunne, 28th Brigade Dépôt—total, 3349.—Second Division.—Commanding, Major-General his Royal Highness Arthur W. P. A., Duke of Connaught and Strathearn. First Brigade: Commanding, Colonel G. E. L. Walker, commanding Royal Engineers, home district—total, 1595. Second Brigade: Commanding Colonel J. Sprot, 47th Brigade Dépôt—total, 1688. Third Brigade: Commanding, Colonel T. F. Lloyd, 48th Brigade Dépôt—total, 1500. Fourth Brigade: Commanding, Colonel Viscount Bury, 12th Middlesex—total, 2511.—Third Division: Commanding, Major-General Sir H. Havelock-Allan. First Brigade: Commanding, Colonel W. N. Waller, R.A.—total, 1583. Second Brigade: Commanding, Colonel Viscount Ranelagh, K.C.B., 2nd Middlesex Rifles—total, 1464. Third Brigade: Commanding, Colonel T. L. Bell, 37th Brigade Dépôt—total, 2214. Fourth Brigade: Commanding, Colonel R. T. Glyn, C.B., 25th Brigade Dépôt—total, 2083.

Grand total: 2286 officers and 49,954 non-commissioned officers and men.

The Second Division was led by the Duke of Connaught, and received an ovation from the spectators. Great interest and enthusiasm were excited at the appearance of Lord Napier of Magdala, who rode past at the head of the 3rd London Rifles, of which regiment he is the honorary Colonel. Her Majesty gave a most gracious recognition to the gallant veteran, to which he responded by bowing low as well as saluting.

There was scarcely a single battalion which marched indifferently, whilst the majority of the regiments went past in fine style. The 2nd Essex Rifles, under Lieutenant-Colonel Tufnell, was much admired, both distance and dressing being all that could be desired. The 6th Lancashire Rifles, the strongest regiment on the ground, were in good form, whilst the Robin Hood Rifles (1st Nottingham), the 2nd Warwick (the former 1000 strong, and the latter but a few less), were very fine battalions. Every detail of the ceremony was carried out according to the programme, and not the slightest hitch occurred in the proceedings; regiment after regiment defiling before her Majesty with that regularity for which the volunteers now bear a prominent name. Shortly before seven a slight shower fell, but it only lasted for a few minutes. All the volunteers, after they marched past, left the ground direct for the railway stations; so that only the combined bands were left to salute the Royal party as they drove off to the castle, the Queen being most heartily cheered by the spectators. Hardly, though, was this over, when a smart shower of rain came down; but a lovely evening succeeded, and the volunteers got off by rail with commendable rapidity. It must have been late, however, before the last of the public reached London.

THE AMBULANCE CORPS.

Amid the bustle and excitement that prevailed in Windsor Great Park on Saturday during the grand parade of volunteers before the Queen, it is very probable that the good service rendered on the field by the Volunteer Ambulance Corps may have been overlooked by the many thousands who were present at the review. But the practical utility of the drill gone through by this corps (as illustrated in one of our Engravings) was well proved on that memorable Ninth of July. Lieutenant Maclure, of the London Scottish, was the organiser of the Volunteer Ambulance Department, the nature of whose humane work is clearly indicated in our Illustration. The arrangements of Saturday, however, were planned by Surgeon-Major Shelton, of the Army Medical Department, the corps being under the command of Surgeon-Major Gasteen, A.M.D. Two field hospitals were established in the Great Park, one being placed under the shade of the trees at the rear of the rendezvous of the First Army Corps, between the upper part of the Long Walk and Queen Anne's Ride, and the second to the rear of the Army Corps under General Sir Daniel Lysons, near Bear's Rails. Each hospital was composed of about seven tents, with sets of panniers and field companions, bearers, water-bottles, and other requisite appliances, three waggons, with six large stretchers and twenty field stretchers, one general service waggon, two water-carts, and all other appliances. Their services proved very valuable, as the number of cases receiving treatment during the assembly, parading, and Review amounted to 150, twenty-five of which were at the moment of a serious character. Ten of these were from sunstrokes, the remaining fifteen casualties being cases of faintness caused by exposure to the extreme heat and the fatigue which had been endured by the Volunteers during the long railway journeys. The other casualties comprised sprains, contusions, and faintings, most of which received immediate medical relief in the field, the more serious cases being removed to the hospitals for careful treatment. Out of the 150 casualties all but eight of the sufferers were able to rejoin their Corps or leave for their homes in the course of the evening, the worst case, one of sunstroke, being eventually removed to the Guards' Hospital at Windsor, while Captain Sparkes, the Adjutant of the 1st Surrey Artillery, who fell from his horse and received a severe contusion on the back, remained in the field hospital at the Cavalry Exercise Ground until Sunday afternoon, when he was removed to his own home in London.

REVIEW CHIT-CHAT.

Among the spectators at the Windsor Review were the King of the Sandwich Islands in a Royal carriage; Sir Frederick Roberts—who witnessed the review from the top of a carriage; and the Chinese Admiral Ting, attended by Captain Lin and Captain Clayton, also of the Chinese Navy. No special attention was paid to the Celestial Admiral, who was not fortunate in his place. The King of the Sandwich Islands, however, as will be seen from the Drawing of our Special Artist, had an excellent position. On the Sunday he dined with the Queen and the Royal Family.

There was no restriction upon the freedom of the Volunteers to wander about during the long hours which many of them had to wait; but their military instinct kept them mostly within the bounds of their own division, ready to obey any call to arms. Some took off their tunics and seemed greatly to enjoy the coolness of the shade and the lovely prospect around them. Others played cards or strolled about inspecting the wares of the itinerant venders who thronged the ground.

The Commissariat department was managed in a somewhat haphazard way, but none of the men seem to have suffered any privation. They mostly brought provisions enough with them to last till their return home, and the water-tanks and troughs erected at the rendezvous of each division gave them a copious supply of cool, sparkling water. The commanders of some few regiments had contracted with caterers, who provided the men with the rations they required.

The London Scottish marched with swinging stride and martial bearing. The corps was much cheered by the spectators.

The Inns of Court, alias "The Devil's Own," a weak corps, had in their ranks several men who lost step just as they neared the Queen. They were also badly sized.

The Artists turned out eight fairly strong companies, and went by in a very creditable manner.

The cadets of Marlborough College (1st Bucks), remarkable for their splendid physique, and a mixed battalion of Eton and Harrow boys, commanded by Major the Rev. E. Warre, came next. The schools went by in the midst of much cheering, and their soldierly bearing was worthy of all the admiration bestowed on them.

The London Irish, a strong corps, went by, as usual, well, to the tune of "St. Patrick's Day," and were much cheered. Each man wore a bunch of shamrock on his cap.

The 19th Middlesex consisted of well set-up, carefully-drilled men, and passed the saluting-point with correct touch and dressing.

The 3rd Kent Rifles, under Colonel Lenon, V.C., were a smart corps, marched past with extreme steadiness and precision, and gave the most satisfactory proofs that they are well and thoroughly trained.

The leading battalion of Dan. Lyson's Corps was that magnificent corps the 1st Lancashire, with men of fine physique and well drilled. They marched past in an admirable manner, and were loudly cheered.

The Northumberland Artillery, who came at the head of Colonel Jordan's brigade, were loudly cheered, not only because of their good marching, but because the spectators admired the pluck that induced this gallant three hundred to undertake so long a journey for the honour of the north country.

The Robin Hoods, upwards of 850 strong, were composed of sturdy, soldierlike-looking men, in a very attractive shade of green. Both their appearance and their marching, which were really admirable, elicited enthusiastic cheers. The Second Warwick (Birmingham) consisted of fine men, who also went by with soldier-like precision.

WIMBLEDON.

For the National Rifle Association, which was founded in 1860 "to give permanence to Volunteer corps, and to encourage rifle-shooting throughout the Queen's dominions," the meeting which opened on Monday on Wimbledon-common marked an epoch, the association attaining its majority this year. The Windsor Review somewhat delayed the assembling; and, except in the quarters of the London Scottish, who, as usual, had been

"on the heights" of Glen Albyn for a week, in the camp of the Victorias, on the opposite side of the dell, and in the Canadian camp, there were on Sunday comparatively few occupants of the tents in the inclosures of the metropolitan regiments. For the first time for eighteen years, it is said, the 1st Surrey were not present for church parade. There was, however, a service under the bell tent, conducted by the Rev. F. Cannon, Presbyterian chaplain. The tents assigned to Volunteers from country corps were more generally occupied, and the crowds of visitors who strolled through the camp in the afternoon found here and there some of the fanciful signs and ornaments by which the inhabitants of this canvas city differentiate their monotonously uniform dwellings. Conspicuous near the firing-point at the running-deer range flies the black-and-white flag of the Inns of Court above the three or four tents which are to shelter the representatives of that famous corps. Their front tents, like those of all their neighbours in the Members' Camp, are brightened by a show of gay-coloured flowers, whilerows of Japanese paper lanterns gave promise of a pretty illumination. Next but one to this tent is "Running-Deer Cottage"—a canvas cottage—inhabited by Earl Grey de Wilton. A huge horned rhinoceros head guards the doorway and pretty garden beds. Further on a water-colour sketch of the three inmates will arrest the attention of their friends to the home of some North Britons, who, in allusion to their names, have called the place "Rob not Roy's Cave." Some members of the 1st Glamorgan have for their "shingle" a picture of a goat, with the legend "Cymry Dros Byth."

The metropolitan Volunteer camps this year, in addition to those already mentioned, are those of the London Rifle Brigade, who have shown a singular regard for the convenience of members by setting up one of Benson's large clocks in their camp square. Near them are the Civil Service (12th Middlesex), the 3rd London, the 2nd (South) Middlesex, the St. George's, the 19th Middlesex (Bloombury), and the Queen's Westminster. The Caradians, twenty-one in number, are under the command of Colonel Gibson.

SHOOTING

began on Monday. There is no doubt that the system adopted this year of shifting the competitors over the range, instead of allowing each corps to shoot together, has had an effect in keeping the scores down. The Alfred series of prizes was the principal event of Monday. This was shot for at 200 yards, from the shoulder, and the first prize was won by Bandmaster Sergeant-Major Woodhouse, of the 1st Hants Artillery, with a score of 27 out of a possible 35. The second prize was obtained by Private Brown, of the 8th Surrey, who also scored 27, and amongst the other prize-winners in this series were three of the Canadian team. The only other contest of general interest was the Inter-University Long Range Match, shot for at 800, 900, and 1000 yards, and which was won by the Oxford team by 717 points against 628. During Monday afternoon several acres of bush were burned down behind the butts, and shooting had to be suspended for a considerable time at some of the ranges.

There has been a very slight falling off in the number of entries, though less than might, perhaps, have been expected. For the Queen's Prize there were 2315 entries in 1880; this year the number was 2291. For the St. George's Challenge Vase there are a few more competitors than last year. Then 2086 entered; now there are 2090 competitors. The Queen's competition opened on Tuesday morning at gunfire for the first stage of 200, 500, and 600 yards, the conditions of which are as usual. The best of the sixty who are entitled to shoot in the second stage next week for the great prize of £250, wins the silver medal and £60, and the 359 next best men will receive money prizes varying in value from £12 to £2. The silver medal was won last year with the unprecedented score of 102 points, out of the 105 possible, by Corporal Scott, of the 4th Cheshire.

RECENT ARRESTS.

To anyone acquainted with the local status of the "suspects" arrested under the Coercion Act latterly it is fully evident that the Irish Executive is striking at the very root, and slowly but surely undermining the foundations, of the Land League. The flimsy agitators who hang around every branch of the League, seeking for cheap popularity with empty vapourings and revolutionary braggadocio, and a keen eye to what they can pocket, are practically told to "stand aside," while the men of business tact and energy, who bring all the power of honest intention and fixed purpose to organise the working of the branches are being rapidly picked up and incarcerated. And the un pitying eye of a discerning public still gazes at the vain attempts of those needy adventurers to provoke the Government into boarding and lodging them for a twelvemonth "free, gratis, for nothing." But the authorities are wide awake, and are evidently well informed as to the worth and power of those whom they are inviting to Kilmallick and other places of Government entertainment.

PETTY POLICE TYRANNY.

The town of Kilmallick, county Limerick, bids fair to become one of rather unenviable notoriety consequent on the action of the police there, and the over-zealous officiousness of a Major Clifford Lloyd, R.M., who has been specially imported from the North for the preservation of law and order in the district. One of this gentleman's latest exploits was to issue orders to the police not to permit even two people to stand conversing in the street, and if a protest be made by a civilian on the execution of such an order—well, everyone in Ireland at the present day knows the danger of remonstrating with a member of the Force, even if the latter's action be ever so illegal. But the petty police tyranny culminated on Friday last, when four most respectable ladies were "brought up" at the Sessions, charged with "obstructing the thoroughfare," and "using insulting language." These ladies were simply strolling two by two on the footway, waiting for a car to convey them and Miss Parnell to a meeting, which that lady was to address; and the insulting language to which the constable swore was "calling him Clifford Lloyd's pet." This is certainly preserving "law and order" with a vengeance.

BOYCOTT.

The celebrated Captain Boycott and his wife touched at Queenstown last week on the National steamer Italy from New York, and proceeded to Liverpool. Miss Boycott landed at Queenstown.

MR. JOHN O'CONNOR,

Secretary of the Cork Branch of the Land League, and a Mr. P. J. Murphy were arrested last week under the Coercion Act. Mr. O'Connor's zeal and marked ability were of too much service to the League, and he could not possibly escape the notice of the authorities. Yet he was the means on several occasions of averting serious collisions between the people and the police, and always advocated strict adherence to Constitutional agitation. JUSTIN.

Sports and Pastimes.

MYERS AT BIRMINGHAM.

Myers stopping up after a hundred

The fleet sprint-racer from America, Myers, will be the lion of the Amateur Championship Meeting at Birmingham this (Saturday) afternoon. Apopos, we reproduce from the most popular of journals for youth, The Boys' Illustrated News, a capital sketch, representing the greyhound lightness of Myers's style. The Boys' Illustrated News, by-the-way, is attracting great attention in the athletic circles by these spirited and faithful drawings from life of pedestrian and cricket celebrities. Myers and Merrill will, it is to be hoped, have a pleasant reception to-day at Birmingham than they had last Saturday.—The annual sports in connection with the Moseley Harriers took place last Saturday at Aston Lower Grounds, Birmingham. Special interest was manifested in the sports by the appearance of Myers, the amateur champion runner, and Merrill, the champion walker of America. In a quarter-mile scratch race, Myers won easily by fifteen yards, time 49 sec., which not only beats English record, but also his own recorded time of 49 1-5 sec., which he made in America. In one of the mile walking handicaps Merrill started from scratch, his closest opponent being Whyatt, North Notts Harriers. Merrill walked fairly, but several of his competitors were disqualified. Whyatt, the English favourite, also walked fairly until the second lap, when he "lited" more than once. For this he was disqualified by the officials, whereupon a scene of great disorder ensued, a crowd of roughs broke into the course, and, in consequence, this and the whole of the remaining races had to be stopped.

The late Newmarket July Meeting proved hardly as successful as the last few anniversaries. Peter, with Fordham in the saddle, was easily beaten by Charibert, ridden by Archer, in the July Cup, owing to a display of temper; but, being in a better humour when Archer was on his back in the Bunbury Stakes, he easily defeated Ambassador and Maskelyne.

Liverpool and Manchester have taken up the running this week. The opening day of the Aintree Meeting was favoured with fine but close weather, and, though the sport promised to be poor, the attendance was a really good one, the rings being well filled. Winchester and Yarmouth not having attracted several of the principal London speculators. No fault could be found with the track, which was in splendid order, and well covered with long grass. The morning gallops, however, were uninteresting, and the only one of the Cup horses on the spot that went at anything over half speed was Dominie, who cove ed a mile alone, and then finished in company with Brown George and Wandering Willie, which pair joined in at the turn for home. The last named was indulged in a walk over for the Windermere Plate, and throughout the afternoon the fields were small. Three contested the St. George Stakes, and the betting between Voluptuary and Ishmael was very spirited; but the Newmarket horse fairly outstayed his opponent and won cleverly. Miss Edwards beat the three opposed to her in the Woolton Stakes, and another quartette contested the Mersey Stakes. Rosario, who is a bad roarer, had the pace of his field all through, and won with the greatest ease.

Harrow easily defeated Eton by 112 runs on the Friday of last week; and on Monday Lord's was thronged by a very different kind of people to see the opening of the Gentlemen v. Players Match. Better bowling than that shown at Lord's on Monday has, perhaps, never been witnessed. Seven men bowled, and of these only one was unsuccessful. This was Morley, whose seventeen overs cost 29 runs. Mr. Grace was on throughout the Players' innings, and though he only got two wickets for 41 runs, he was very straight, and by no means easy. Mr. Steel took three first-rate wickets for 22 runs, and Mr. Evans five for 25. The Oxonian's bowling thus reads the best on paper, but as two of the five wickets were those of Peate and Morley, it is scarcely better than Mr. Steel's. Mr. Evans took three wickets in one over—Selby's with the first. Peate's with the third, and Morley's with the last ball of the over. Bates, when he went on for the second time, bowled 13 overs for 9 runs and a wicket. The best performances of the day were, however, those of Peate and Barlow, who bowled superbly. Each of them obtained four wickets for 31 runs. Peate was extremely difficult, over and over again beating Mr. Grace. He took the first four wickets—Mr. Hornby, Mr. Grace, Mr. Penn, and Mr. Leslie; and when the fourth was taken his analysis showed the following extraordinary figures—23 overs and three balls, 17 maidens, 10 runs, 4 wickets. From this point, though he bowled almost as well as before, Peate could not get a wicket. Barlow achieved a very similar result in a different way.

When he went on first he delivered 39 overs (27 maidens, 12 in succession) for 25 runs, but when at 103, with six wickets down, he went on again, he took the remaining four wickets in 12 overs and 2 balls, at a cost of only six runs. Peate is to-day the best bowler in England. No man has shown such improvement, and certainly no bowler is so difficult on all wickets. The Players, having won the toss, went in first, and scored 95; and the Gentlemen headed their opponents by 36 runs on the first innings. Barnes and Mr. Lucas played best for their respective sides. The Gentlemen were out at fourteen minutes to seven, and Mr. Hornby, the captain of the side, insisted upon his strict rights, and made the Players go in for one over. On Tuesday the Players scored 112; and Messrs. Studd and Trevor won the match for the Gentlemen by five wickets.

The eleven representing the North against the South for Jupp's benefit at Kennington Oval was a strong one:—Mr. A. N. Hornby (captain), Barlow, Pilling, Barnes, Morley, Hill, Uytett, Lockwood, Emmett, Bates, and Peate. Shaw was originally chosen, but he telegraphed to Mr. Hornby that, owing to a bad hand, he could not play, and the Northern captain then engaged Allan Hill.

The tenth annual athletic meeting of the Railway Clearing House was held at Stamford-bridge last Saturday, when the winners of the various events were as follow:—120 Yards Handicap—W. Palmer, 11 yards start. 440 Yards Handicap—T. Fallows, 25. Half-Mile Handicap—C. Paine, 30. Two Miles Open Bicycle Handicap—C. E. Liles, L.A.C., after a dead-heat in the final heat with W. Milner, L.A.C., won by three yards; both started from scratch. One Mile Open Handicap—W. Hancock, Westbourne A.C., 55. 220 Yards Open Handicap—H. Denny, S.L.A., 18. One Mile Steeplechase—C. Paine, 40. Mr. T. M. Collet was the Referee.

The Crystal Palace Bicycle track was last Saturday numerously attended by an enthusiastic body of the lovers of the iron horse, to witness the competition in an open one-mile handicap. Result:—C. Crute, Sutton B.C., 35 yards, 1; H. V. Cleaver, London B.C., 45, 2; P. J. M. Kinlay, Beckenham, 70, 3. A splendid race. Won by six inches. The Crystal Palace Five-Miles Challenge Cup was also keenly contested. C. Crute and Fallport, for the Sutton B.C., defeated W. Wydham and H. V. Cleaver, of the London B.C., by 20 4-5th sec.

PICKWICK BICYCLE CLUB.—The members of this, the senior club in England, held a ten miles race at the Alexandra Palace, in the presence of some thousands of spectators, last Saturday. Result: G. L. Hillier, Stanley B.C., five miles champion, 1; R. A. Woolnough, Rovers, 2; N. Hawkes, Stanley B.C., 3. Won by 500 yards. Time, 32 min. 28 4-5th sec.

On Saturday afternoon Mr. Eade backed his celebrated retriever bitch, Now Then, to swim from the suspension bridge at Chelsea to London Bridge in two hours. The animal accomplished the distance in one hour five minutes nineteen seconds.

A serious accident occurred last Monday at Birmingham to Allan Hill, the celebrated Yorkshire fast bowler. In the course of the innings of Gilbert's United Eleven of England, who were playing Eighteen Gentlemen of Edgbaston, Hill, whilst running, came with such force into collision with the wicket-keeper of the local team as to break his collar-bone. Play was immediately suspended, and Hill received medical attention upon the ground.

ANOTHER SUICIDE.—On Saturday morning one of the Midland Railway officials at Nottingham saw a man jump from the railway bridge which spans the Trent near that town, and fall into the river below. A boat was procured, but when the body was recovered life was extinct. From documents found upon the body, the man's name is supposed to be Freeman.

THE FINANCIAL EVENT OF THE DAY, and probably indeed of the year, is the new Italian loan. The sum for which subscriptions are now required is £14,600,000, or one-half of the whole loan. Like the existing Italian Rentes, the interest will be 5 per cent per annum, less Italian income-tax; the price of issue will be £90, or, allowing for delay in paying up the instalments, about £89 8s. per cent. The last price of the old rente is 91, so that the new rente is nearly 1½ per cent cheaper. Messrs. Baring and Hambro are the joint issuers.

A BEAUTIFUL MIRAGE was seen last Wednesday se'nright from the Irish coast at Killiney, near Dublin. Beyond the sea, at an apparent distance of twelve or fifteen miles, a long tract of land appeared, covered with green fields, trees, farmhouses, &c. It terminated some six or eight miles toward the south in a sloping headland, but it stretched away northwards into a dim distance. Three lighthouses stood forward like sentinels of the shadowy coast; one of them seemed to be on a sandbank, some distance from land, the others were on the shore. To the south two rocky islets appeared very distinctly; away to the north-west there was a bright patch of light, in which many vessels were reflected upside down.

The enormous sale of HORNIMAN'S PURE TEA by some 4000 Agents (Chemists, &c.) at once testifies to the high approval it has realised for its combinedly strong, delicious, and invigorating qualities.—[ADVT.]

VALUABLE DISCOVERY FOR THE HAIR.—If your hair is turning grey, or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case grey or white hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting its growth on bald spots where the glands are not decayed. "The Mexican Hair Renewer" is sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere at 8s. 6d. per Bottle.—[ADVT.]

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is perfectly harmless, and very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Sold by all Chemists, at 1s. 1½d. per Bottle.—[ADVT.]

Law and Crime.

THE OUTRAGE ON THE BRIGHTON LINE.

It is a coincidence worth mentioning that the last issue of the PENNY ILLUSTRATED PAPER containing the best portrait hitherto published of Percy Lefroy Mapleton was circulated on the Friday morning of last week, and on the Friday evening

LEFROY WAS ARRESTED.

The fugitive charged by the verdict of the Balcombe Jury with the wilful murder of Mr. Gold on the Brighton Railway on June 27 last was apprehended on Friday evening, July 8, at 32, Smith-street, Stepney, where he took lodgings two days after his disappearance from Wallington. He called on his sister at the Fever Hospital in the Liverpool-road, Islington, on the morning of the 28th, and, with 14s. borrowed from her, made his way to the East-End. The house where he took his lodging is kept by Mrs. Bickers, who was not led to suspect that the man living in her house was being sought for in every quarter. To her he gave the name of "Clark." He went out very little, and chiefly at night. He paid 6s. a week, leaving 3s. 6d. at the outset as a deposit. He described himself as an engraver, and as one who needed quietness. He kept the blind down during the whole of the time he was in the place.

The police received the information respecting his hiding-place in the same way as they have received suggestions and information respecting many other people, and sent to investigate this case. They knocked at the door of 32, Smith-street, and asked whether "Mr. Clark" was in. They were informed that he was; and on walking into the room where the man was sitting they saw at once that Lefroy was before them. To make assurance doubly sure, the officers had taken with them a person who knew Lefroy, and who at once identified him. Lefroy is reported to have said,

"I suppose I must admit that I am the man you seek, and I shall say 'Not guilty.'"

EXAMINATION AT SCOTLAND-YARD.

The prisoner was brought in a cab to Scotland-yard, and on the way thither was moody and reticent. He had spent on food nearly the whole of the little money he possessed when he left Islington on June 28. After being properly identified in the detective department, he was again placed in a cab and taken to King-street police station, Superintendent Gernon's divisional station; and, on being handed over to the custody of Inspector Beard, he said,

"I am very hungry; I have not had anything to eat all day."

The inspector sent for refreshments for him, of which he partook as if he had been without food for some time. He appeared annoyed at being looked at, and shrank at being gazed at, and seemed relieved to be taken to a cell, where a policeman was placed with him for the night. The police would not allow any person to see the prisoner. He had endeavoured to change the appearance of his face by having his slight whiskers and moustache shaved completely off, though he had made no other attempt at disguise. He had a haggard and worn look, but preserved a calm demeanour.

LEFROY'S JOURNEY TO LEWES.

Lefroy, as he is generally called, slept well all night, awaking by himself on Saturday, and, after wishing the constables a pleasant "Good morning," partook of a good breakfast of coffee and sandwiches. Inspectors Swanson and Jarvis left Victoria Station with Lefroy in custody by the 7.35 train on Saturday morning; and on the road to the Terminus the prisoner was soundly hooted. At the various stations along the line the police and railway officials took effectual measures to screen the prisoner from the observation of the crowds which had assembled; but at Hayward's-heath, which was reached at nine o'clock, the party had to change from the Brighton to the Lewes line of railway, and Lefroy was necessarily brought into full view of the passengers in the crowded train and of those on the platform. As he walked along he was saluted with a storm of execrations. The officers as speedily as possible placed him in a first-class compartment of the Lewes train, which was standing in a siding, and the blinds were again drawn. During the journey Lefroy had chatted with the inspectors and smoked cigarettes, which he obtained at Clapham Junction. He appeared to be excited while passing through Merstham and Balcombe tunnels. In the former the crime is supposed to have been committed, and in the latter Mr. Gold's body was found. At Croydon Lefroy was seen and recognised by the station-master, and at Three Bridges by station-superintendent Brown, who states that his appearance is very slightly different from that which he presented when returning to Wallington with Sergeant Holmes on the evening of the murder. The train remained in the siding of Hayward's-heath about three quarters of an hour, during which period Lefroy appeared much dejected and depressed. At Lewes it was not widely known that the prisoner was coming there, and comparatively few people witnessed his arrival about half-past ten o'clock. He was at once placed in a cab and driven to the county gaol, where, by some error, was made in private, the representatives of the Press being excluded, although they naturally protested. The inquiry lasted about an hour, and subsequently the magistrate's clerk read the subjoined minutes of evidence to the reporters at his office:—

LEFROY'S EXAMINATION

INSPECTOR DONALD SWANSON, of the Criminal Investigation Department, said:—At a quarter to eight o'clock on Friday night, in company with Inspector Jarvis and Police-Constable Hopkins, I went to 32, Smith-street, Stepney. On entering the front room on the first floor I saw the prisoner, Percy Lefroy Mapleton, sitting in an arm-chair. Addressing him, I said, "Percy Lefroy Mapleton?" In reply, he said, "Yes, I expected it." I told him I was a police officer, and that I should apprehend him on a charge of wilfully murdering Mr. Gold on the Brighton Railway on the 27th of June. In answer he said, "I am not obliged to make any reply, and I think it better not to make any answer." I wrote it in my pocket-book as he said it, and read it over to him. In reply he said, "I will qualify that by saying I am not guilty." No further conversation ensued, and I then took him to Scotland-yard and brought him to Lewes this morning, and handed him over to Superintendent Berry.

LEFROY AS A CROSS-EXAMINER.

The Prisoner.—Did I offer every facility to search the room?

Inspector Swanson.—Yes.

The Prisoner.—Did I in any way attempt to get away?

Inspector Swanson.—No.

INSPECTOR FREDERICK S. JARVIS, of the Criminal Investigation Department, said:—On Friday night, about 7.45, I went to 32, Smith-street, Stepney, in company with the last witness. On entering the room, Swanson having done so previously, Swanson said to me, "This person admits being Lefroy. I have told him he will be charged with the murder of Mr. Gold on the Brighton Railway on the 27th ult., and in reply he said, 'I am not obliged to reply, and I think I had better not.'" Lefroy himself then said, "Well, I will qualify that by saying I am not guilty." I then searched the prisoner, and found on him 1s. in silver. That was all the money he had. In a chest of drawers in the same room I found one black cloth vest, two caps, three collars, a false moustache and whiskers, and a portion of a coloured flannel shirt. In a cupboard in another part of the room I found a number of cuttings of material similar to the flannel shirt, and a light scarf. On the chest of drawers I found a pair of scissors, a bottle of arnica, and a brier-root pipe. On seeing the scissors I said, "Do these belong to you?" He said, "Yes; I used them for cutting off my moustache." I told him what I had found, referring to all the things, and he said, "I think that is all that belongs to me." The waistcoat has blood marks upon it inside and out, mostly on the right breast; one of the collars has also blood upon it. Some of the cuttings similar to the material of the flannel shirt are apparently blood-stained. Swanson and I took him to Scotland-yard in a cab. On the way he said,

"I am glad you found me. I am sick of it. I should have given myself up in a day or two. I have regretted it ever since that I ran away. It put a different complexion on the case, but I could not bear the exposure. I feared certain matters in connection with my family would be published. I suppose I shall be allowed to see a lawyer?" I replied, "Certainly." He then said, "I am glad you did not bring any of my so-called friends from Wallington with you." The above statement was made altogether voluntarily. Swanson had cautioned the prisoner in the room in my presence about saying anything before we left.

SUPERINTENDENT BERRY, stationed at East Grinstead, who has charge of the case, applied for a remand until Wednesday; but, at the prisoner's request, the remand was extended to Friday, when he will be brought up at Cuckfield.

ANOTHER DISCOVERY AT SMITH-STREET.

A discovery of an important character was made last Monday afternoon at Lefroy's late lodgings, No. 32, Smith-street, Stepney. On a further and stricter search being made by the detectives Swanson and Jarvis, who apprehended the prisoner, they found in the dusthole a white linen shirt covered with blood. It is surmised by Mrs. Bickers that on the night when Lefroy went into the garden and walked in it for some time he took that opportunity of secreting the blood-stained garment.

CAUSE OF LEFROY'S ARREST.

There can now be little doubt that the telegram sent by Lefroy from 32, Smith-street, to the man Seele was the cause of his arrest. It appears that the suspicions of his landlady, Mrs. Bickers, being aroused by his peculiar mode of living, she sent her daughter to the address indicated on the telegram, which ran as follows:—

"From G. Clark, 32, Smith-street, Stepney, to S. Seele, at J. T. Hutchinson's, 56, Gresham-street, London, E.C.—Please bring me my wages this evening, about eight, without fail. Flour to-morrow. Not 33."

At Gresham-street Miss Bickers had an interview with Mr. Hutchinson, with whom she freely discussed the suspicious character of the lodger in her mother's house. Shortly afterwards a gentleman arrived at Scotland-yard, and said he wished to give information as to the whereabouts of a man whom he felt convinced was the missing man Lefroy. On being asked for his communication he refused to say anything until the payment of the reward (£200) to him alone was guaranteed by the authorities (of course on condition that his information was correct), and it was also promised that his name should never be divulged in connection with the matter. These preliminaries having been arranged to the mysterious gentleman's satisfaction, he informed the inspector in charge of the detective office that he believed the man they wanted was to be found at 32, Smith-street. But is not Mrs. Bickers entitled to a share of the reward?

LEFROY'S DEFENCE.

Lefroy wrote a letter on Saturday last to his sister, from Lewes Prison, detailing his circumstances, and asking assistance to enable him to make a defence to the charge of murder that has been made against him. His sister on Monday communicated with several of the family relations of the prisoner, informing them of what she proposed doing, and has been asking their advice and co-operation. A lawyer has been engaged to defend Lefroy, and every means will be taken to present his case before the jury who try him. Offers of pecuniary assistance have already been made by friends of the accused.

A SEA TRAGEDY.

An Italian named Giovanni Angelo Cassano was on Saturday charged at the Bow-street Police Court on an extradition warrant with having committed murder on the high seas. The circumstances of the crime showed that a desperate struggle had taken place; and the prisoner was committed to take his trial in Italy.

LYNCH LAW.

The Cincinnati Commercial publishes details of an awful tragedy at Newman, near Atlanta. Mrs. Mitchell, a young married bride, when going from her own house to visit a neighbour, was outraged and murdered. Circumstances led to the capture of the murderer. The goal where he was confined was attacked by one hundred armed men, who tied the murderer, whose name was Waldrop, to a stake, saturated him with oil, and then roasted him alive.

A CARLISLE HORROR.

A verdict of wilful murder was returned on Monday against a servant girl, aged fourteen, named Margaret Messenger, for having smothered in a bog the child of her employer, Mr. Pallister, farmer, of Sprunston, near Carlisle. Only five days before Mr. Pallister had a child drowned in a well close to the bog.

"GOLD, GOLD, GOLD, I LOVE TO HEAR IT JINGLE!"

A long litigation, arising out of the gold discoveries in the Wynaad District of India, came to a close in the Chancery Court on Monday. Mr. Harris, a man of experience in the gold-mines of California and Australia, discovered the value of the district in question, and, being without capital, communicated with some parties in India, who advanced the means for the purchase of one of the auriferous estates. Harris alleges that by a verbal agreement he was to have one third of the profits of the enterprise. Messrs. Fleming and Co., the defendants, denied that there had been such an arrangement; paid £10,000 into Court as the purchase of the mining rights; and asked that Harris might be directed to convey the Seeputtu estate to them. Vice-Chancellor Hall has reserved judgment.

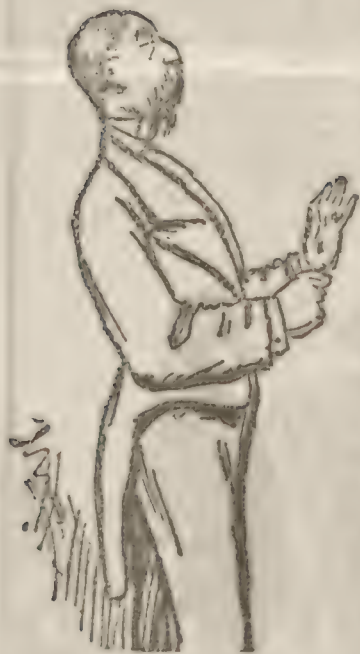

MABEL WILBERFORCE'S ROMANCE.

The extraordinary slander case came to a sudden end on Monday. Miss Wilberforce's solicitor having written to the name and address which she represented were those of her trustee at Indianapolis, a reply was received on Monday from a gentleman of a similar name, which indicated that there was no such person as the plaintiff had described. Thereupon her solicitor and counsel retired from the case, and the jury returned a verdict for Captain Philip, the defendant. The plaintiff, so it appeared from her counsel's opening statement, was a young lady about twenty-seven or twenty-eight years of age, and she brought this action against the defendant to vindicate her character against a series of slanders and libels. Her story would be in a great part out of the ordinary course, and some things would perhaps excite a smile, while many others would seem incredible when first told. Miss Mabel Wilberforce, the plaintiff, was born in 1854. She was the daughter of a medical gentleman, and an American by birth. She lived with her parents during their lifetime, and travelled in various parts of Europe, and eventually she was in Paris during the late siege, with her mother. She took great interest there in hospital duties. After the siege she returned to America, where her mother died. She then came back to Europe when the war had broken out, and was deputed by the Red Cross Society to represent them. The learned gentleman then detailed her connection with the Geneva Red Cross Society, and what had occurred between her and the Charity Organisation Society. After minutely detailing the other circumstances connected with the case, which were of a voluminous character, he said that the intimacy between the plaintiff and the defendant's father was that of an adopted father and daughter, and at one time plaintiff lived on good terms with the whole of the family. The defendant, it was alleged, had charged the plaintiff with attempting to poison old Dr. Philp, and also with being a swindler. The defendant had not put a plea on the record justifying what he had done, but had simply pleaded to him and the construction put upon his words. The defendant applied to a detective in New York or San Francisco, where this lady was born, and one of the suggestions whispered at one time was an abominable insult to this lady, involving the charge that the brother, who had been living with her as the guest of Dr. Philp, twenty years of age, was her son, and that her name was not Wilberforce; that she was a common woman; and that as to her having been born in San Francisco, there was no truth in it. But Mabel Wilberforce's counsel, as explained, thought fit on Monday to withdraw from the case.

Chat of the Gossips.

["WHAT THE World SAYS."]

GREAT preparations are being made for the Life Guards' ball on Friday. Meanwhile the invitations are kept in the darkest secrecy. The officers are only allowed ten cards apiece (for which privilege they will give about £80), which represent about two hundred and fifty guests; and as we know the ball is to be on a large scale, it is to be concluded that most of the invitations will emanate from another and more exalted quarter.

Lady Lonsdale has taken Lady Cardross's pretty house near Bray for a short term. Last Sunday week a little launch started, containing H.R.H., her Ladyship, Count Gleichen, and one or two others of either sex. At Boulter's Lock the crush was terrible, and the Royal pilot got into difficulties, steering his craft into the stern of another boat, the occupants of which were about to remonstrate in river fashion, when they discovered who was the author of their discomfort, and promptly mended matters with a reassuring boat-hook.

All those who had the honour of Lord Hatherley's personal acquaintance will miss a most genial friend. Although so advanced in years, no one could converse with him without being charmed with his sympathy, and that happy combination of scholar and man of the world.

His memory was marvellous, and took him back to the childhood of Queen Victoria, who owes her birth in England to the instrumentality and foresight of his father, Sir Page Wood. When first introduced to the little Princess he was a boy, and she a baby about seven months old. On her little Royal Highness entering the room in her nurse's arms, he scarcely knew what was expected of him; but without more ado stepped forward and kissed the baby hand.

Years later, when the baby had blossomed into the Queen of England, and the boy the Lord Chancellor, he delighted her Majesty by confiding to her his early embarrassment in her baby presence. To the last they were attached friends; and notwithstanding the influence he exercised over the Queen through storm and sunshine, a rosebud was never known to fall from his chaplet.

The Duke of Sutherland arrived in the city of Berlin on Sunday night at 10.30 at Queenstown (eight days and nine hours from New York).

Anton Rubinstein left London the day after his last recital, Tuesday, 5th, for Berlin, and from there, on the 7th, for Peterhoff (Russia). His fishing for gold with the unmusical nation brought him the net profits of £8000, made in eight weeks. Is there a prima donna anywhere in the world who made so much?

I hear with pleasure that, before leaving London, Rubinstein did an act of just gratitude to a meritorious artist. He sent to Signor Beignani, the well-known conductor, an ivory bâton richly inlaid with silver, and in a letter accompanying it expressed his satisfaction with the artistic manner in which Signor Beignani had led Rubinstein's opera both in Moscow and in London.

Madame Adelina Patti will sing, for the last time this season, at M. F. de Rothschild's, on the 24th inst., and leave on the 25th for Aix-les-Bains. By the end of August she returns to this country, to pass a few weeks of the grouse-shooting season in Scotland, with friends.

The middle of September will find her in Ireland in another château, with a select party for fishing and partridge-shooting. Thence she leaves for Cray-y-nos (Wales), her country seat, where preparations are being made for fairy-like improvements, to be completed during the winter.

On Oct. 22, as I mentioned before, she leaves for America in the Servia, a small boat of 8000 tons, which is expected to make the trip, if there is only fair weather, in seven days. Big as the boat is—the saloon measures 300 feet in length—it could not carry all the vocal and instrumental artists who daily propose to accompany the diva. One and all of these are sent to her old and trusted friend and agent, Franchi, who, with the same grim smile, receives every one, and promises an early reply—I suppose on Oct. 23.

Thirty-six officers and about 750 men of the Royal Naval Artillery Volunteers were entertained by Sir Thomas Brassey in Windsor Park on Saturday and Sunday. On the day of the review the King of the Sandwich Islands both lunched and dined with Sir Thomas and Lady Brassey at the camp.

Harve Regatta takes place on Monday next, when, notwithstanding that most of the racing fleet will be in the Clyde, there will be a fair number of racing craft present—notably Florinda, Norman, Arethusa, and probably Hildegarde.

As a supplementary event to the yachting festivals at Cowes, Ryde, and Southsea, is the Portsmouth Royal Dockyard Regatta, fixed for Aug. 17, when more than £200 will be contested for in prizes.

A correspondent very well known in the cricketing world writes:—

"Will you allow me through your columns to draw attention to the fact that on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday next the North, captained by Mr. Hornby, and the South, captained by Mr. I. D. Walker, will play for Jupp's benefit at the Oval? I have known Jupp since 1860, when he played for me in a match—Brockham v. Horsham—then being nineteen years of age; and he exhibited such wonderful cricketing power that I went to Mr. W. Burrow, the then secretary of the Surrey Club, to see him play against Epsom on Brockham Green, near Dorking, when his performance was equally good as at Horsham, and he passed him into the Surrey Eleven in 1862. I have known Jupp throughout his cricketing career as a thoroughly straightforward hard-working cricketer, and steady and industrious man, who never asked for a shilling beyond his lawful pay, and one who was always ready to help others; and I trust the public will support his benefit by their presence."

"Yours obediently, F.G."

I hear that at the end of the present season the Royal Italian Opera-house, Covent Garden, is to become the property of a limited company. The expenses, despite the rising of the prices, have become enormous, and the amount of capital required the Gye family are reluctant to encumber themselves with. For this reason they are anxious to retire, and to substitute a joint-stock company, with Lord Dudley as chairman.

HAVE IT IN YOUR HOUSES. — LAMPOUGH'S PYRETIC SALINE.—The cure in Smallpox, Fevers, Skin Diseases, of Bilious Sickness. Sold by Chemists, and the only Maker, H. Lamplough, 113, Holborn-hill, London, E.C.—[ADVT.]

WHAT EVERYBODY WANTS TO KNOW.—A gentleman writes:—"Since I have used Eno's Fruit Salt night and morning my headaches, &c., have quite left me; and this is after suffering for above twenty years. You should make this fact well known." Eno's Fruit Salt or Fruit Saline (prepared from sound ripe fruit). It is a pleasant beverage—sparkling, cooling, refreshing, and invigorating; it keeps the blood pure and prevents bilious attacks by natural means. Sold by all Chemists. Price 2s. 9d. and 4s. 6d. Beware of unprincipled worthless imitations.—[ADVT.]

FLORILINE.—For the Teeth and Breath. The best liquid dentifrice in the world. It thoroughly cleanses partially-decayed teeth from all parasites or living "animalcules," leaving them pearly white, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. Price 2s. 6d. per Bottle. The Fragrant Floriline removes instantly all odours arising from a foul stomach or tobacco smoke, being partly composed of honey, soda, and extracts of sweet herbs and plants. It is delicious to the taste, and harmless as sherry. Sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere.—[ADVT.]

CONCERNING REV. E. J. SILVERTON'S REMARKABLE REMEDIES.

THE greatest and grandest blessing either Nature or Providence can bestow is Health. It has been compared to a treasure, a diamond, or a jewel; and it may be carefully guarded and watched against any encroachment that shall lessen its importance or value, that even old age, the gradual decay of Nature, comes with an almost imperceptible tread, beckoning us from Nature to Eternity.

"So live that when thy summons comes to join
The innumerable caravan that move
To that mysterious realm, where each shall take
His chamber in the silent halls of death,
Thou go not like the galleys slave at night
Scourged to his dungeon, but sustained and soothed
By an unfaltering trust; approach thy grave
Like one that draws the drapery of his couch
About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams."

On the other hand, this beautiful and Almighty blessing may be so abused and bartered away at the reckless mercy of wild intemperance, lust, and passion as to shrink in shame and confusion with the tattered and frail tenement it holds, and hide itself in an early and a premature grave.

DOING GOOD.

Rev. E. J. SILVERTON has been before the public for twenty-five years as a preacher of the Gospel, and although he has just given up a large pastorate at Nottingham, he is still preaching in various parts of London every Lord's Day. During the last fourteen years Mr. Silvertown has been studying diseases of the human ear, and in thousands of cases he has been enabled to give most valuable assistance to persons afflicted with the malady of deafness, noises in the ear, &c.

HAPPY TO HEAR IT.

"Hush! no secrets, dear! Pa has consulted the Rev. E. J. Silvertown, can hear the lightest word."

"You are joking, surely?"

"No, really, I'm in ear-nest."

It has fallen to the lot of Mr. Silvertown, in his pastoral work, to see great numbers of sick people, and to be associated with their medical advisers, and he has, therefore, had great experience. To remove pain and disease he has from time to time prepared remedies of great value, and received from patients the most satisfactory testimonials concerning their recovery and cure. Such testimonials may be examined at Mr. Silvertown's consulting-rooms by any person desiring to do so. The study of deafness brought Mr. Silvertown into connection with persons suffering with diseases of the eye; and, indeed, numerous bodily ailments, which he has endeavoured to ameliorate. The wonderful success attending his preparations induced him to place them before the public, and he assures all afflicted persons that the remedies have proved signally successful in the treatment of the various complaints for which they were prepared. The remedies have not been introduced all at once, but remedy by remedy as suffering and pain have seemed to demand. The applications for help have become so numerous, and personal visits so constant, that Mr. Silvertown has found it absolutely necessary to add to his staff of helpers.

CONSULTING PHYSICIANS

who sit with him on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, from Eleven to One, for the examination of patients, at his Consulting-Rooms, 17, St. Bride-street, Ludgate-circus, London, E.C. No charge is made for the interview at these hours. Appointments for town or country should be made by letter.

TESTIMONIALS.

FROM A BAPTIST MINISTER AND PUBLIC LECTURER.

"Holmhead-street, Glasgow.
"Dear Brother,—The Trumpet came late to hand. I have laid out a good sum upon acoustic instruments, but have never yet had one that has done so much service as yours. I can enjoy conversation with a friend now quite easily, and hear what is said at my public meetings. I shall have very great pleasure in recommending it to anyone I may come in contact with who is plagued with a dull auditory nerve.—In haste, yours very fraternally,
J. T. M."

INTENSE DEAFNESS CURED AT THE AGE OF SEVENTY.

"Feb. 1.
"Dear Sir,—I received your remedies safe by post, and am very glad to say they relieved the pain immediately.
"My hearing returned before I had used one half of the remedy, and I have not had the noise in my ear since. If you have any handbills printed and will send me some, I will distribute them for you.—I remain your obedient servant,
A. C.
"Crewe, Cheshire."

IN FAVOUR OF GOLDEN CERATUM FOR SORE EYES.

"Cleve, Yatton, Feb. 3, 1881.
"Dear Sir,—I beg to inform you that your medicine has done my eyes a great deal of good. I will highly recommend it to all sufferers.—Your obedient servant,
G. W."

TESTIMONY IN FAVOUR OF ENERGIZER.

"Jersey, Dec. 13, 1880.
"Dear Sir,—Will you kindly send me one dozen bottles of your Medical Energizer, as my stock which I bought from you when in Jersey is now exhausted. The medicine is truly invaluable in my long coughs.—Yours truly, J. B."

The "Book of Health and Treatise on Diseases of the Ears and Eyes," price 1s., may be had free. Persons requiring medicine, with letters of advice, should inclose stamped addressed envelope for reply.

All communications should be addressed to Rev. E. J. SILVERTON, at his Consulting-Rooms, 17, St. Bride-street, Ludgate-circus, London, E.C.

WIMBLEDON HODGE-PODGE.

LADIETH AND GEMMEM,—

In appearing for the futh time on any public platform—in claiming your kind indulgenth for the King of the Cannibal Islanth—I wish in the futh place to say I come before you, Ladieth and Gemmem, at the invitation of my old friend, "THE SHOWMAN." Ladieth and Gemmem, what do we not owe to that illuthtriouth old man? I don't athk that ath a conjamdrum. I am only anxioth to expweth my thankth to him in a practical manner—by taking hith place on thith platform while "unavoidable circumthanthes" detain him in Wimble-don—for the many pwesent hourth his Show hath given me far away in my Island Home. "The Showman" hath for years patht taken uth behind the scenes of the Theatre—real jam! behind the scenes of the Government and Parliament; and behind the scenes of the Court; and hath, without fear or favour, shown uth the men and women of dis day in dere habits as dey live. Und zo correctly, Ladieth and Gemmem, did he hold the mirror up to nature that directly I arrived in London I found my way at once to de National Palace—and a berry good host, too, am Massa Claridge!

Ladieth and Gemmem, let uth be hithtorical. I am berry much afraid all our Ancethtors were not of much account. Away in the Sandwich Islands, I own to my forefathers having made a meal of your poor, unfortunate Captain Cook. Be equally frank, and own to the peccadilloes of some of your Ancethtry! Do I not make amends? Rather! I bow down, and worship your Cook of the prethent day, for he hath brought me from the uttermost ends of de earth to dis Island, and everywhere I go I see Cook's Tourists travelling. Ah! I should like to see the Cannibal who would dare to slaughter Cook or his crew to-day!

Ladieth and Gemmem, yourth ith a fine country; and I have been much honoured from the moment I landed. On my bery futh railway journey, I was de object of such close observation and marked scrutiny that I felt inexprthibly flattered—till I saw one gemmem take out of hith pocket the PENNY ILLUSTRATED PAPER, and first look at the portrait of Lefroy and den at me. Den I somehow felt uneasy.

Ladieth and Gemmem, let uth now turn our gaze in de direction of Windsor! "Goodneth, graciouth! Graciouth, goodneth!" as thingeth Mithter Arthur Roberth. When I come to think of de great honour done me on Saturday in the Queeth Park at Windsor, golly! it almotht taketh my breath away. Why, there gathered together as many soldiers as I have people to reign over in the Cannibal Islands. Ah, bredren, you may well be proud of your nation, and guard your shores; for it is your inethtimable privilege in thith right little, tight little island—the home of the brave and the free—to work like no niggers in de world ever yet worked—to win luxury for your betters and bread and butter and Volunteering for yourthelves!

Ladieth and Gemmem, I feel I ought to conclude these few remarks by singing "God Save the Queen." Her Gracious Majesty was so exceedingly kind to me! But I have the most genial of all hosts—the Prince of All Work—to thank motht. Golly! How he doth make the shiners fly! To the Prince and Princeth I tender my best thanks. And when dey—or their pretty sailor boys—or any oder patron of this Show—shall find himself in de Cannibal Islands, he shall always receive a grateful welcome from me!

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

I have returned in the nick of time to do the one thing needful. His Gracious Majesty has been greeted by young Eton and Harrow at Lord's; lustily cheered by the Volunteers at Windsor; and lionised by their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House; but one crowning honour remains to be done him. That is to return him the heartiest thanks of all in this Show, and to express the hope that next time he visits England his Majesty will not have cause to say—as he ascends to his attic at Claridge's—Whoe'er hath travelled lifeth dull round,

And in a Palath may have been,
May thigh to think he still hath found,
Hith warmetht welcome at an Inn!

CODLIN.

THE BISHOP OF NATAL AND THE ZULUS.

BISHOP COLENSO, in a letter addressed to a friend in England, says:—"I had a visit last week from Sikota, Panda's son, living with his brother Umkongo in this colony. He has brought his son—who is Umkongo's adopted heir—to be taught here at Bishopstowe. Umkongo, you will remember, was Panda's favourite son after the death of his full brother Umbulazi in the great fight between his party and Cetewayo in 1859, when Umkongo and Sikota escaped into Natal. Sikota entirely confirmed the fact that when he escaped at Isandhlwana, where he fought on our side with Umkongo's men, of whom many were killed, and had got across the river near Rorke's Drift, where he sat down out of breath, expecting the Zulus to follow and kill him and others with him, he heard the Zulu induna call out to his men, 'Come back; the King has not said that you were to cross;' and they went back, and he was saved."

THE NEW TICHBORNE CLAIMANT.

The New York Herald of June 29 and 30 publishes long despatches from San Francisco, which purport to give a faithful narrative of the wanderings of the "long lost Sir Roger," the new claimant to the Tichborne estates. He has, it is stated, for many years borne the name of Charles Ogden Ferris, but declares that his real name is "Roger Charles Tichborne, the only surviving son of Sir James Tichborne and Henrietta Felicité Tichborne." He accounts for his long silence by stating that as far back as 1854 he took an oath not to reveal himself until 1880; being in fear of assassination if his identity were established; and he has kept his oath. The narrative has been drawn up by General W. H. L. Barnes, described as a "distinguished popular attorney" of San Francisco, to whom it was communicated by the new claimant. General Barnes, it is stated, subjected him to a rigid cross-examination for several days in the hope of confusing him if he were an impostor, but failed to do so.

ANOTHER SHOCKING DISCOVERY ON THE BRIGHTON RAILWAY.

The decomposed body of a child was discovered in a second-class carriage of a Liverpool-street train at the Peckham-rye Station of the London, Brighton, and South-Coast Railway last Sunday. The train brought one second-class passenger, a young woman, from Wapping, who, directly she arrived at the barrier, asked what time the next train went back. She was then seen to join two other women, all of whom took third-class singles to Shadwell. The body was removed to Camberwell mortuary.

"In what condition was the patriarch Job at the end of his life?" asked a Sunday-school teacher of a quiet-looking boy at the foot of the class. "Dead," calmly replied the boy.

The other day an American, whose name we will not mention, offered the painter Meissonier ten thousand francs for one of his sketches. "The price is twenty thousand," said the artist. "Twenty thousand? But it did not take you more than a day to do it." "True," replied Meissonier, "but it took me fifteen years to learn how to do it in a day."

Chit-Chat.

THE QUEEN in 1874 (when several soldiers died from sunstroke at a review at Chatham) expressed a wish that no reviews or ceremonial parades requiring much exertion should take place on sultry days after nine in the morning or before five in the evening; and it is said that her Majesty has inquired why her wishes were forgotten on Monday week at Aldershot.

THAT'S RIGHT, YOUR MAJESTY!" "George, Ranger," needs a wiggling now and then!

THE EMPRESS EUGENIE arrived at Darmstadt last Sunday week in the strictest privacy as the Marchioness Biennes, and the next day visited the mausoleum of Princess Alice, on which she laid a wreath. She then resumed her journey to Baden (Canton Aargau), where she will take the waters for several weeks, and is living in complete retirement.

THE MAYOR OF WINDSOR was robbed of a valuable watch during the review on Saturday.

THE GERMAN EMPRESS has now so far recovered as to have been able to sit up for a little while.

THE HEALTH OF PRINCE BISMARCK under his treatment at the Kissingen baths is improving visibly, and the pain in his legs is decreasing. The complications of France and Tunis do not retard his progress—not a bit of it!

THE GERMAN EMPEROR and his daughter, the Grand-Duchess of Baden, arrived on Sunday morning at Constance, where they were received by the Grand Duke of Baden and Princess Victoria, the future Queen of Sweden, when the whole party embarked for the Island of Mainau.

KING KALAKAUA of the Sandwich Islands, and the gentlemen of his suite and Mr. R. F. Syngé, left Claridge's Hotel, on Monday, shortly before two o'clock, for Windsor Castle, returning to town for dinner. In the evening his Majesty and suite went to the Prince of Wales's Theatre.

THE KING OF SPAIN and the Royal family left the capital on Saturday for the Summer Palace at San Ildefonso, glad enough, doubtless, to exchange the intense heat prevailing there for the cool shades of La Granja and the pure air of the Guadarrama Mountains.

THE LATE LORD HATHERLEY was Sunday School teacher not at St. Margaret's Schools, Westminster, but at St. John's Schools, Westminster.

THE PROROGATION.—Tuesday, Aug. 16, is the earliest date for the prorogation named with any confidence by Members of the Ministry specially charged with the business arrangements of the House. At the same time an effort will be made to wind up business in time for the prorogation on Saturday, the 13th.

The St. Kitt's Gazette for June 17 hails "the removal from the Colony of the most unpopular Governor that has ever presided in the Leeward Islands—H. E. George Berkeley, C.M.G."

THE SENTENCE OF DEATH passed upon Midhat Pasha and the other persons charged with the assassination of the Sultan Abdul Aziz has been confirmed by the Court of Appeal.

THE BODY OF THE REV. JOHN RANDOLPH, M.A., Rector of Sanderstead, near Croydon, was on Monday found in the garden attached to the rectory, he having committed suicide.

Father (who is always trying to teach his son how to act while at the table): "Well, John, you see that when I have finished eating I always leave the table." John: "Yes, Sir, and that is all you do leave!"

THE AULD FISHER'S ADVICE.

Come a' ye jolly little boys, wou'd fain be fishermen,
An' I'll tell ye what to dae where the burn comes down the glen,
When the snaw broo' a' runs oot, and the wind is south and loun,
'Tween the gloamin' and the mirk—when the sun's gaen down.
When the day is clear and bricht, eh, there's little chance to catch,
The troot are lying snug, but their een are on the watch;
But wait till e'enin' comes, and creep cannily aroun',
And throw your line fu' pawky—when the sun's gaen down,
And mind ye aye o' this, keep yoursels weel out o' sicht,
If the fish butt ae glint get o' ye, they're aff wi' a' their nicht.
But keep ye down quite laigh, and mak' neither sign nor soun',
An' the troot will come oot feedin'—when the sun's gaen down.
See yon auld-fashioned fisher chiel, wha sits upon the brae,
He's sat there for twa hours and mair, what guid can that him dae?
His rod is lying still—he but smokes, or sangs does croon,
The wily bodie's waiting till the sun's gaen down.
Noo drap ye in your bait whaur the stream runs tae the linn,
An' let it gae down doucely, withoot either stress or din,
Gi' him time to get weel heukit, when a fish comes moovin' roun,
Syne tak' him hame to supper, when the sun's gaen down.

J. THEOBALD and CO.'S SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

THE ACME FIELD GLASS.

A good field glass could never be got under 23s. to 30s., but encouraged by the great demand for our Telescopes (over 6000 being sold in six months), we have now produced in large quantities the ACME FIELD GLASS, relying on a rapid and extensive sale to pay us for bringing out and selling an instrument at little more than half its usual price. The Acme Field Glass will give a splendid view of twenty-five miles, will show clearly the moving of birds that are but mere specks of dirt against the sky to the naked eye, the flags of a ship when only its topmasts can be seen on the horizon, a church clock three to four miles distant; and, in fact, for tourists, pleasure parties, sea voyagers, &c., it is an indispensable instrument—one which they cannot afford to be without. The object-glasses measure 1 1/2 in. across, and these, together with the other lenses, are of the clearest definition and great power. To persons who cannot stand the fatigue of holding a telescope, we especially recommend it. Each one has adjustable rackwork tube, so that it can be used to any eyesight; has japanned mounts, Morocco covered body, and a neat black leather case, a leather handle, so that it can be carried in the hand, and buckle attached to each side and strap, so that it can be slung across the shoulders. This wonderfully powerful instrument we offer for 15s. 6d., carriage free.

THE MINIATURE ACME.
 This is a much smaller Field Glass, but far more powerful, having twelve best intensely clear lenses (double the number of the 15s. 6d.). The object-glasses measure 1 1/4 inches across, and the entire instrument is only 2 1/2 inches high when closed, combining the greatest power in the smallest compass. This glass is sold by Opticians at 50s., but is offered at the wholesale price of 23s., carriage free, each in silk and velvet lined case, with strap, &c., as above. This is an opportunity never before offered to the public. The reason we can sell them so ridiculously cheap is because, where an ordinary Optician disposes of one, we sell 300.

THE MINIATURE ACME, No. 2.
 Specially made in answer to many inquiries. The same size as the 15s. 6d. glass, but with twelve lenses. Gives a much larger view, and far greater magnifying power, than the 23s. size. An intensely powerful and clear glass. Price 37s., carriage free. Carriage to India on any of these Glasses, 2s. extra; all other Foreign places, 6s.

As only an immense sale for these glasses will pay us at these prices, all orders must be sent within twenty-eight days (except from abroad), as, if we do not sell a sufficient quantity, this offer will be withdrawn. All orders to be accompanied by Cheque.

E. T. THEOBALD'S NOVELTIES.

THE LORNETTE NAPOLEON
 is an exact copy of the instrument carried by the famous Napoleon Bonaparte. It combines in one the advantages of a Telescope and a Field-Glass, the portability of a small pocket telescope, with the light and large field of view of a field-glass. A telescope, owing to its length, requires a steady hand to use it to advantage. The Lorgnette Napoleon, having an eye-glass of 2-inch diameter, and measuring only 4 inches long when open, can be put to the eye and steadied in a moment. Unlike a field-glass, the Lorgnette Napoleon can be carried in any pocket or the hand without inconvenience, measuring, when closed, 2 1/2 in. by 1 1/2 in. By a special patented arrangement, once the correct focus is found, it can be turned a small screw, be immediately fixed, so that it is always ready for use. The Lenses are achromatic, and of the finest possible power and definition. It will give a splendid view of over twenty miles; will show clearly the moving of birds that are but mere specks to the naked eye; the flags of a ship when only its topmasts can be seen on the horizon; a church clock at four miles distant; and, in fact, for tourists, pleasure-seekers, colonists, &c., they are indispensable.
 In order to fully introduce this new article, we shall offer it for one month only at the special price of 7s. 9d. each, carriage-free—less than half the cost of a field-glass of equal power. All orders must be accompanied by Coupon and P.O.O. for 7s. 9d., payable at Nelson-street, Greenwich.

P.I.P.
16.7.81.
E. T. THEOBALD agrees to redeem this Coupon by forwarding one LORNETTE NAPOLEON on receipt of this and P.O.O. for 7s. 9d.

GRAVES'S PATENT GUN.
 39 inches long. Has adjustable power, so that it can be used as a target gun in the room or lawn, or power sufficient to shoot small game. It is almost as accurate as a rifle, will shoot arrows or bullets, requires no explosive, is noiseless. Price, with two targets, five arrows, &c., 7s. 6d.

THE NEW GARDEN or FIRE ENGINE will throw a jet of water thirty feet; made of zinc; is invaluable for the garden, conservatories, washing windows, and incipient fires; it has also a sprayer for distributing the water in spray. It is complete in itself, stands 33 inches high, price, securely packed, 5s. 6d. each.

NOTICE.—GOLD PENCIL CASES.
 Having purchased a large quantity of 9-carat Gold Pencil Cases at such a remarkable price we can sell them for 4s. 2d. each, post-free. They are beautifully engraved, with seal at the end. 4s. 2d., post-free.

NEW ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE of Model Engines, Lathes, Telescopes, &c., free 3 stamps.

UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIAL FROM BARONESS BURDETT-COUTTS.

"Stratton-street, Feb. 11, 1881.

"Messrs. Goodacre and Son.

"Gentlemen,—I beg to acknowledge the receipt of a copy of "The Birds' Friend," kindly sent by you to the Baroness Burdett-Coutts. Her Ladyship does not usually accept the numerous presents sent to her, but is very pleased with this, and would wish to recommend it to her friends. Would you kindly let me know its price?"
 "Yours truly,
 "F. G. PENN."

"Bewicke Main, Chester-le-street,
 "May 21, 1881.

"Dear Sir,—Through your advertisement I sent for the picture entitled 'The Birds' Friend,' and which I received to hand, and have much pleasure in testifying to the general satisfaction of all that have seen it as to its magnificence. I have just received it home to-day, framed with a 3-inch gilt. It is simply delightful, and I hereby send to see if you have, perchance, one more left on hand, and could you let me have it at the same price. Also I desire to know if you have one somewhat reasonable that would pair with it. By acknowledging this you will greatly oblige,
 "Yours most truly,
 M. MADDISON."

20S. SEWING-MACHINE. 20S.

The Largest and Cheapest in the World.

Works by Hand or Treadle.

Making 1000 stitches a minute.

It has taken a long time and involved a heavy expense to bring this Machine up to its present state of perfection, as anyone may see. The profit on each Machine is very small, and the remuneration for the great outlay which has already been made, and for the cost of the Machines, is looked for in the immense sales which are confidently predicted.

The above Machine is without question the

CHEAPEST EVER OFFERED FOR SALE,

and the Mechanism being SO SIMPLE THAT A CHILD

CAN USE IT.

One fact is said to be worth a thousand arguments;

and, therefore, the National Sewing Machine Company challenges any person residing in London to call on them and inspect many hundreds of testimonials; or a person living in the country could deputee a town acquaintance to call.

Clergymen are invited to examine this machine, it being specially adapted for charitable purposes.

N.B.—Buy no machine till you have seen this prize.

NOTICE.

AN OPPORTUNITY RARELY MET WITH.

A FREE GIFT

of a beautiful Single-stone Paris Diamond

Ring. Claw setting, plain gold case, equal in appearance to one costing £10. Will be sent to every purchaser of any one of the following articles. The Ring being enclosed with each order in rotation as we receive them.

2S.—ALBERT and LOCKET.

Registered post-paid 26 stamps, a Gentleman's

Albert Chain, either Curb, Fetter, or long links.

The links are every one solid and stamped

18-carat, and cannot be told from one costing £10, attached to which is a solid plain 18-carat Gold-cased

Locket, to hold two photos, beautifully finished, equal to one costing £3 in appearance. The above are not mere trash, but each article is solid and of perfect workmanship.

2S. 6d.—Splendid Three-stone

PARIS DIAMOND RING; star setting; 18-carat gold-cased mounts; equal in appearance to one costing

20 guineas, 30 stamps; single stone, claw setting, 18 stamps; sapphire and Paris diamonds or ruby and diamonds, 42 stamps.

2S.—NECKLET and LOCKET.

Registered post-paid 26 stamps, a handsome 18-carat

Gold-cased Necklet and Locket to hold two Portraits, complete, beautifully embossed and plain, a perfect imitation of a gold one costing £10. For 20 stamps, a splendid Silver-plated Necklet and Locket, to hold two portraits, either plain or embossed; broad massive designs or light flagree patterns. No lady need fear sending for one of these, thinking they are trash, for they are now being sold in London at 10s. 6d.; but, owing to the depression of trade, we purchased for cash a large consignment of materials, &c., which enables us to supply the above at the absurdly low price. Thousands of unsolicited Testimonials from
